HARDHATS ARE recommended in the area of Arlington High School where workers Tuesday began to widen Euclid Avenue from Chestnut Avenue to Ridge Avenue. The $200,000 project also calls for stoplights to be installed at the intersection of Euclid and Walnut avenues. Traffic will be rerouted around the site until work is completed in late August.

Tight village boundaries hinder physical growth

by BILL HILL

The population of Arlington Heights is expected to grow to 115,000 by the year 2000, but there are few areas where the village's boundaries can be stretched, according to village planners.

"But to say we are landlocked is not totally true, because there is some room for expansion on a couple sides," Village Planner Joseph Kesler said. "We also have some big pockets within our boundaries that still are unincorporated."

Kesler points to the area on the northwest edge of Arlington Heights between the village's existing limits and where Lake-Cook Road soon will be extended as the largest adjacent unincoporated area.

"If we really want to grow, that's where we should go," he said.

There also are areas surrounded by acres of unincorporated land between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect and about 115 acres immediately south of the Northwest Tollway.

There are also areas surrounded by Arlington Heights that have remained unincorporated, including a large area along Rand Road and about 100 acres immediately east of Arlington Heights Road on both sides of Hintz Road.

KESLER SEES A need to annex additional area to the village, primarily to provide space for commercial and industrial development.

Since Prospect Heights became incorporated this spring, the large area to the northwest is considered most promising for annexation, he said.

"Prospect Heights took a lot of land we had hoped to annex. It cut into our growth area very seriously. But there's quite a large area between our northern boundary and Long Grove," Kesler said.

There are about 200 acres south of where Lake-Cook Road will be extended and about 130 acres north of the road which are undeveloped, he said.

Whether the village will attempt to annex the area depends on the village board, he said.

"A policy decision must be made by the board. If we're not aggressive, Buffalo Grove may take it," Kesler said.

During recent discussions about boundary agreements, several board members have said the option of expanding into Lake County should be left open. Other trustees opposed going into Lake County because of the problem of extending utilities.

Buffalo Grove has no plans to annex the land between Lake-Cook Road and Long Grove, but the Lake County Forest Preserve District does, according to Daniel Larson, Buffalo Grove village manager.

"WE SEE NO benefit in going west of Arlington Heights Road. Our expansion is mainly to the east," Larson said.

Being in two counties does not present any great problems, but it does increase the work load at times, Larson said.

"It can get cumbersome 'cause you're dealing with twice the number of people," he said.

"I don't know if it would be worth the extra work for Arlington Heights to annex such a small tract of land," Larson said.

The area also is within the sphere of influence of Long Grove, which means the extension of sanitary service to the area would have to have the approval of the Village of Long Grove, he said.

The pockets of unincorporated land surrounded by areas of Arlington Heights have not joined the village mainly because taxes for the landowners would increase 7 or 8 per cent, Kesler said.

"People don't always realize the benefits of better police protection, better fire protection and the library," he said.

The annexation of such areas must be voluntary if they are larger than 60 acres.

"They just don't want to be in Arlington Heights if it means their taxes are going to increase," Kesler said.

Cost of township hall $24,992 above estimate

Work is progressing on the new Wheeling town hall to the tune of $24,992 more than originally anticipated, the township auditors learned Tuesday night.

Ben Trapani of Mount Prospect, the building's general contractor, told the auditors the largest single extra cost was $18,600 for an automatic elevator for handicapped persons. An elevator is required in all public buildings financed with federal funds, according to an Illinois law passed last October.

Trapani and James Ray, the building's architect, first believed an elevator for the two-story building might cost as much as $25,000. "I think we are very lucky," said Ethel Kolerus, township supervisor. "We could be paying this much money for an elevator alone." Trapani received six elevator bids ranging from $18,600 to $25,000.

The elevator, revisions in subcontracting charges and credits pushed the cost of the building to $703,417, nearly $53,425 more than was first estimated.

SOME OF THE remaining $6,392 in extra costs stemmed from subcontracts that had to be revised to accommodate the elevator. Nearly $4,600 extra was needed to comply with village plumbing requirements.

Those plumbing requirements included installing three dry fire cabinets with 100 feet of hose and spray nozzle at a cost of more than $1,054 each, one for each floor and the lower level.

Trapani also told the board subcontractors had credited $3,617 to the building's account. Many of the credits stemmed from adjustments of seven-foot doors through the building.

Trapani told the board construction was delayed about 30 days because of complications caused by adding the elevator.

The building at 1818 N. Arlington Heights Rd. lost from 75 to 80 square feet of space because of the elevator, Ray told the auditors. In addition to the elevator, the building will have two stairways and a sloping ramp in the rear to serve as a truck service entry and an entrance for the handicapped.

Trapani still anticipates a Nov. 1 occupancy. "As we get closer and closer to the deadline, we work faster and faster," Trapani said.

Funeral services this morning for patrolman

Funeral services for Arlington Heights Patrolman Alan J. Vargo will be held today at 10 a.m. at St. Thomas of Villanova Church, 1141 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine.

More than 40 police departments will send representatives to the services for Vargo, 24, who died Sunday morning after being struck by a car while directing traffic at the scene of an accident.

Following services, expected to last about 45 minutes, the funeral procession will follow Winston Drive to Palatine Road.

The procession will then follow Arlington Heights Road south through the village to Golf Road. The procession will then take Algonquin Road to St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery in Palatine.

Six Arlington Heights patrolmen will act as pallbearers for Vargo, a two-year member of the department. About 40 patrolmen will serve as an honor guard.

Vargo, an Arlington Heights resident, is survived by his widow, Teri, and his parents.

Two local banks, the First Arlington National Bank and the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, have established memorial funds in Vargo's name.

Special head count underway in village

Arlington Heights residents are reminded that a special census is being conducted in the village.

A spokesman for the census bureau said the special head count should be finished in about three weeks.

Residents who will be taking vacations during the census are asked to call the census center at 255-6372 to report the needed information.

All information gathered by census takers is kept confidential, the spokesman stressed.

Power outages, heavy rains hit area

Relief came in a big way Tuesday night for the Northwest suburbs' parched lawns and gardens as thunderstorms rolled into the area. But the long-sought rains did not come without cost. Power lines were downed in Mount Prospect, and fire department officials said late Tuesday that the village was without electrical power. Police in Arlington Heights reported numerous calls of flooding and scattered reports of power outages. Des Plaines police reported downed power lines and no electrical power in the city west of Mount Prospect Road. Palatine police had three unconfirmed reports of lightning striking in the area. At O'Hare Airport, airline departures were being delayed 45 minutes to an hour because of the weather.

Strict water ban enforcement

Wheeling trustees are calling for stricter enforcement of the village's sprinkling ban. Trustee John Cole said although "most people are complying," there are some residents "who basically say 'so what' and continue to use water." Wheeling Police Lt. Ted Bracke said Tuesday police will "no longer be issuing warnings" to residents who violate the sprinkling ban. Residents who continue to violate the ban will be taken to court to face fines of from $5 to $500. About 30 warning tickets and citations already have been issued for sprinkling violations, Bracke said.

Imprint cited in DeLuca arrest

Bloody gloved hand impressions left on a car door led to the arrest of Frank DeLuca, 38, in connection with the brutal slayings of Frank Columbo, his wife and their teen-age son, police sources said Tuesday. Four impressions made with a gloved left hand were discovered on a car owned by Columbo, which was abandoned on Chicago's Near West Side after the May 4 murders of the Columbos in their Elk Grove Village home. An investigation reportedly showed that the gloved impressions were made by a person with only three fingers on the left hand. DeLuca is missing one finger and part of another on one of his hands, the result of a parachuting accident, police sources said. DeLuca and Patricia Columbo, 20, the only surviving member of the family, have been charged with the murders.

Bar owners refused permit

Lake County Liquor Comr. John Balen has denied liquor licenses to three tavern owners who testified to making payments to former Liquor Comr. Ronald Coles, convicted in March of extorting money from two of the owners. Balen said the licenses were denied because liquor laws require that the license holder be "of good character and reputation in the community in which they reside." The owners, Joseph Budy of the Sahara Inn, William Dugan of the Country Music Inn and Martin DeFoor of the Cheetah II, all testified in U.S. District Court that they paid money to Coles in exchange for licensing favors. U.S. Atty. Samuel Skinner has said he will attempt to have Balen's decision reversed. Balen also has denied renewing the license for Roman House near Wheeling, saying the tavern violates a county ordinance prohibiting nudity in a place where liquor is sold.

Howlett steel job a conflict: report

by STEVE BROWN

A special report, authorized by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott, Tuesday concluded Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett was involved in a conflict of interest because of the job he held with Sun Steel.

The report, prepared by former Illinois Supreme Court Justice Marvin F. Burt, said Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, was involved in a conflict of interest from Sept. 23, 1973 until Feb. 11 when he resigned from the post as vice president of the Sun Steel Corp.

Burt declined to advise Scott, a Republican, who is also seeking reelection this fall, on whether he should file suit against Howlett seeking to reciver the money he made from his outside job.

Scott asked for that recommendation on March 4, but Burt indicated there are two similar cases pending before the Illinois Supreme Court on similar issues.

A REPRESENTATIVE for the attorney general said he will follow Burt's recommendations completely and withhold any legal actions until the court rules. A supreme court decision is not expected until September.

An angry Howlett issued a statement calling the Burt report "strictly a political decision."

Howlett, who was campaigning in Southern Illinois, added "there is no conflict of interest. This is a phony issue. I challenge the attorney general to file suit immediately to get the matter out of the political arena and into the courts."

Howlett's campaign manager, Hy Raskin, and his attorney, Donald Rueben, held a press conference in Chicago to denounce the Burt Report.

THE REPORT from Burt seemed to reopen one of the most controversial campaign issues that had developed during Howlett's heated primary battle with Gov. Daniel Walker in the winter.

Walker hammered away on the Sun Steel issue for much of the primary campaign. Howlett was accused of taking $15,000 annually from the scrap metal processing company for the past 15 years.

The call for an investigation by the attorney general was initially made by Ronald Stackler, head of the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education. Stackler ran with Walker as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general. He was soundly defeated by Illinois Senate Pres. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago.

ALTHOUGH STACKLER contended that his request for the investigation was not politically motivated when raised during the primary campaign, he declined to offer any information to Burt during the investigation.

"I do not wish to pursue the charges. I am no longer a candidate for attorney general. I am no longer a candidate for any office and I do not think I can add any information to your report," Stackler said in correspondence to Burt.

The former justice concluded that Howlett was involved in the conflict since 1973 because that was when the Illinois Vehicle Recycling Board was created. Howlett is the chairman of the board. The panel deals with legislation governing the operation of scrap metal companies and contracts with scrap metal companies to have junked autos cleared from state roads.

The Herald reported exclusively on Feb. 4 regarding Howlett's role in the board and reported that an official of a firm owned by the same parent company that employed Howlett was also a member of the Illinois Vehicle Recycling Board.

One Scott aide said while there is a possibility a law suit will be filed against Howlett to recover the money paid to him by the scrap dealer, there probably would be no attempt to bring criminal charges against Howlett for violating state conflict of interest laws.

Correction

Arlington Heights motorcycle policeman Herman Gaare was the first village policeman to die in the line of duty.

Gaare died following the crash of his motorcycle while chasing a speeder on Northwest Highway in 1927.

The Herald was in error when it reported Tuesday that Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was the first to die in the line of duty after his death Sunday.

Viking photos show rocky, rolling Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Viking 1 rode a parachute and a cushion of rocket power to a smooth landing on Mars Tuesday and discovered a rocky, rolling desert with sand dunes under an usually bright late afternoon sky.

Its first two black and white pictures, displaying clarity never before seen from a robot explorer, appeared as if they had been taken at sunset in a desert in Nevada.

"It's a very exciting place," said astronomer Carl Sagan. "Mars is extraordinarily interesting."

The seven-foot tall spacecraft landed only 17 seconds late after an 11-month voyage from Earth 214 million miles away. Viking was quickly transformed into a nuclear-powered science observatory bearing the flag of the United States and a Bicentennial emblem honoring the nation's 200th birthday.

"For Viking today, the search is just beginning," said Viking mission director Thomas Young two hours after the big parachute and then three rocket engines eased the spacecraft to a gentle touchdown.

President Ford praised the space agency and called Viking's landing a "wonderful and a most remarkable success." He asked if NASA planned a third Viking after Viking 2 lands in September. He was told more advanced missions were being considered.

Wether monitors were programmed to being operating shortly after landing and a Mars-quake detector was turned on a few hours later. Results from the experiments, however, were not expected until Wednesday.

Biologists will have to wait eight days before their three life detection instruments get a sample of soil to begin their long-awaited quest for live on the fourth planet out from the sun.

Dr. Thomas Mutch, chief of the photographic experiment, said there was no obvious evidence that water had a role in shaping the surface. Pictures from orbit suggested the landing area was in a drainage basin for once-mighty rivers that geologists believe existed a billion years ago.

The presence of water in the past would increase Viking's chances of finding evidence of life — a key objective of the $1 billion, two-shot Viking project.

Geologists said the rocks littering the landscape were sharp chunks of dark and light color. Some were pitted, which would suggest they were evidence of one of probably many volcanic interludes in Mars' history.

The surface was obviously wind blown. There were mounds of soil on sides of some rocks and other features typical of wind action in a desert. But scientists said wind apparently had not played a dominant role there.

Mutch said there was one mystery in the first picture — a dark line which he said apparently is a shadow from something.

He said one picture showed a middle altitude cloud layer on the horizon. And Dr. James Pollack said the sky was 100 times brighter than would be expected from Mars' atmosphere alone. This means, he said, there are many particles suspended in the "air."

Viking is scheduled to take its first color picture Wednesday.

It was extremely cold — scientists estimated 37 degrees below zero Fahrenheit — when the Viking landed, and the atmosphere was much too thin to support animal life as it is known on Earth. But scientists hoped some microscopic forms of life might exist.

There were no visible signs of life in the first two pictures, although Dr. James C. Fletcher, space agency administrator, joked about what he said looked like cactus and sagebrush in the distance. These features presumably were rocks.

Union chiefs threaten postal strike

Threatening a nationwide postal strike to dramatize that the U. S. Postal Service "is going down the drain," union leaders Tuesday accused the Ford administration of trying to "ruin" the mail service. The presidents of 53 local postal unions, representing 25 per cent of the country's 600,000 postal workers, voted for a "nationwide job action by Aug. 20" unless certain conditions were met, said Moe Biller, president of the New York Metro Area Postal Union. Biller made it clear that a "job action" would, in effect, be a strike. The union leaders also voted to push for a 50-state endorsement of their platform when the parent union — the American Postal Workers Union —holds its biennial convention in Las Vegas, Nev., on Aug. 9.

Reveal India A-bomb used U.S. material

Testifying at an unprecedented Nuclear Regulatory Commission hearing, a State Dempartment official Tuesday conceded for the first time that India used U.S. material to help detonate its initial atomic explosion. Acting Assistant Secretary of State Myron Kratzer said the Indians mixed U.S. Deuterium, known commonly as "heavy water," with their own material to develop their first nuclear device. He said he did not know how much U.S. material had been used. Earlier witnesses at the hearing urged the NRC to refuse to license future sales of enriched uranium reactor fuel to India, saying that to allow such sales without additional safeguards would encourage other countries to go nuclear.

Public housing bill to White House

The Senate approved and sent to the White House Tuesday a measure to authorize an additional $850 million for public housing in fiscal 1977. Of the amount to be appropriated, $140 million would be set aside for acquisition or development of public housing — $100 million of that for new construction or substantially rehabiliatated units. The remainder can be used for either existing public housing or new housing at the discretion of the Department of Housing and Urban Affairs. The bill also would authorize an additional $2.5 million for elderly and handicapped housing.

Hint U.S. insurance for flu vaccination

The administration may propose its own insurance plan to solve the problems which peril the swine flu vaccination program, the government's top health officer said Tuesday. Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant HEW secretary for health, said the plan under consideration — with congressional approval — would involve setting aside an unspecified amount of money for use against suits growing out of the nationwide vaccination program. He likened it to federal flood insurance. Any unused funds from a reinsurance pool would be returned to the government, Cooper said. He said details were still being ironed out as one way to counter the unwillingness of private insurance firms to write policies.

Last U.S. troops leave Thailand

The United States Tuesday sent home its last combat troops from Thailand, leaving 245 advisers and $388 million in equipment as the only vestige of its 15-year-military presence in mainland Southeast Asia. In the privacy of his downtown command headquarters, Brig. Gen. Harry C. Aderholt hauled down and folded his personal flag, symbolically closing the U.S. Military Assistance Command, Thailand. In March, the Bangkok government rejected an American request to accept the presence of 3,000 U.S. troops in the country indefinitely and ordered out all but a maximum 270 advisers by Tuesday.

French bank robbers net millions

NICE, France (UPI) — Thieves carrying food and wine with them tunneled into the underground vault of a bank over the weekend and stole an estimated $10 million from safe deposit boxes in one of the biggest bank thefts on record, police said Tuesday.

The thieves rifled 200 of the 4,000 safe-deposit boxes at the local branch of the Societe Generale bank, one of France's five largest, and welded the vault door shut from the inside.

The theft was not discovered until early Monday afternoon, shortly before the bank closed for the day.

The thieves dug a 25-foot tunnel from a nearby sewer into the bank vault, shoring it with the timbers like coal mine shafts. Police said they found no debris from the digging, indicating the thieves may have worked on the tunnel for weeks and carefully carted off the debris.

The bank's alarm system failed to go off and police said the Nice branch of the bank employed no guard over the weekend.

Empty oxygen and acetylene tanks and welding torches, which the thieves used to open eight safes inside the vault and seal the door from the inside, were strewn on the floor.

The floor was also littered with empty wine bottles, bread crusts and the scraps of food they brought with them.

Other valuables, such as semi-precious stones and non-negotiable securities, which the thieves discarded, were also scattered about. One report said the thieves used a corner of the vault for a latrine and some silver pitchers left behind as chamber pots.

The thieves left behind a note saying, "No shooting, no violence, no hatred." It was signed with the international peace symbol, an inverted "Y" in a circle.

As news of the theft spread, hundreds of safe-deposit box holders stormed the bank at opening hour Tuesday, waving their keys and mobbing the manager, Jacques Guenet.

Guenet ordered the bank's doors closed and admitted customers in small groups.

One man who arrived before opening time kicked the door savagely, shouted "Kill the manager!" and walked away shaking with sobs. One woman, told her jewelry was gone, fainted. She was revived with brandy.

Ford near 'magic' delegate number: aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dismissing Ronald Reagan's claims the GOP nomination is sewed up, President Ford's aides announced support from 16 more delegates Tuesday and said Ford is within 11 votes of the magic number.

Jim Baker, Ford's chief delegate hunter, said the President has 1,119 of the 1,130 needed for nomination — a figure Baker said might be reached by the end of the week.

He denied Ford was using the power of the presidency to win delegates, and dismissed as "psychological warfare" claims by the Reagan camp their candidate has 1,140 delegates — 10 more than needed.

The latest UPI tally shows Ford with 1,113, six less than he claims. Reagan has 1,060 and there are 86 uncommitted. UPI already had counted as leaning to Ford five of the 16 new delegates his camp claimed.

Ford's aides said he had seven more delegates in New York State, five in Virginia including two previously supporting Reagan; and one each in Louisiana, Illinois, South Carolina, and Delaware.

A top delegate counter for Reagan said the only surprises in the 16 additional delegates Ford forces announced were the two in Virginia previously counted for the Californian. He said Reagan would have "quite a few more" uncommitted delegates to declare "before the week is out" to counter Ford's 16.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, Reagan's national campaign chairman, said he believed "many delegates wanted to be postured publicly in the Ford camp but will eventually declare for Reagan when the time comes.

Police dig up buried kidnap truck

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI) — Investigators Tuesday dug up a moving van and disclosed the kidnapers of 26 children and a bus driver had buried it with earth moving equipment in broad daylight to use as the underground prison for their victims.

For 16 hours last week the children and driver, abducted at Chowchilla, Calif., survived stifling heat in their underground prison before clawing their way out.

Sheriff's officers who took reporters to the rock quarry where the victims had been entombed said the kidnapers must have used heavy equipment, like a bulldozer, to bury the 30-foot-long van, apparently recently.

"I always say if you are going to commit a crime, be obvious as hell," said Sheriff Ed Bates, of Madera county where the kidnaping took place.

"If they had snuck around here with shovels at night they would have been caught."

The kidnapers had prepared the van for entombing their victims by cutting a hole in the top for an entryway and by boring two five-inch holes that held exhaust fans. A 4-inch flexible hose 35 feet long extended from one of the holes into tree branches where it could not be seen. The van also had been equipped with some mattresses, a small amount of food and water and an improvised toilet.

The vehicle had been owned originally by the Palo Alto Van and Storage Co., which sold it last November. The sheriff would not say who purchased the van, nor would he disclose the license number which still was in place when it was found. Officers said the man had given a fictitious name when he bought the van.

With the kidnapers still at large, there was some fear among residents of the town of Chowchilla where the kidnaping took place last Thursday, and in the county seat of Madera arrangements were made to provide police escorts for the eight to 10 school buses that run daily in the district. Authorities said the guard system will be continued at least until the end of the week.

Sailor, 21, indicted in park extortion

A sailor accused of trying to extort $100,000 from Marriott's Great America amusement park in Gurnee by threatening to kill thousands of visitors, was indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury. William A. Gillen, 21, Johnstown, N.Y., was arrested June 20 by an FBI agent at the main gate of the park in the suburb. The agent posed as the park's general manager and made the arrest when Gillen approached him and asked if he had the money. Gillen was stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Station where he was studying to become an electronics technician, authorities said. He faces a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a fine of up to $10,000.

$31 million U of I budget

Pres. John E. Corbally proposed Tuesday an operating budget for the University of Illinois for fiscal year 1978 of $31,036,400 — an increase of 12.65 per cent over estimates for the current fiscal year. The proposal, given to the Board of Trustees at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus, called for professional salary increases amounting to 8 per cent. The increase includes a 5.5 per cent targeted annual increase and a 2.5 per cent "catchup factor" to make up for deficiences in fiscal 1977 which began July 1. An additional 2 per cent salary increase was recommended for non-academic "open range — civil service" employes at the university.

Reflecting the difficult financial situation, Corbally said the university "may be facing large gaps between funding requirements and income from (the state's) general revenue (fund) and tuition in the next five years." Under the current tuition rate the university will face "an income gap of approximately $40 million by fiscal year 1982," he said.

7th Dist. delegates to Reagan

Ronald Reagan got another committed convention delegate Tuesday because of a recount of votes from Illinois' 7th District in the March 16 Illinois primary. The new delegate, Robert M. Woodward, a retired U.S. Army major general, confirmed he "definitely" would support the California governor. Woodward lost by three votes in the March 16 primary to state Rep. Ronald A. Stearney, but sought and got a court-ordered discovery recount.

Monday, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford directed the Illinois Election Board to certify Woodward a winner. Stearney, who has been listed as an uncommitted delegate, said he would not appeal the decision.

Luxembourg royalty in city

Mayor Richard Daley personally welcomed Prince Jean, Grand Duke of Luxembourg, and Duchess Josephine Charlotte when they arrived at O'Hare Airport Tuesday for a visit. The mayor's director of special events, Jack Reilly, presented the Duchess with a bouquet of roses upon her arrival. During a luncheon at the Palmer House, Daley said Chicagoans were "happy and proud" to have the royal couple visit their city.

Prince Jean, who rules a nation about one-tenth the size of Chicago, praised Chicago as a "striking example of modern America" and noted humorously that there are almost as many Luxembourg descendants living in Chicago as there are citizens of Luxembourg. Guests at the luncheon included John Cardinal Cody, insurance magnate W. Clement Stone, Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott, Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne and diplomatic representatives from Luxembourg and other countries.

5 fire victims buried

Five brothers and sisters killed Saturday when a fire swept through their northwest side apartment building were buried at Mount Carmel Cemetery, Hillside, Tuesday. Two other persons died in the blaze. Funeral masses for the Boyes children, Miguel, 10, Anayanski, 11 months, Eric, 3, Emir, 5, and Luis, 9, were said at St. Mark's Roman Catholic Church. The youth's mother, Matilda Boyes, was in stable condition Tuesday at St. Mary of Nazareth Hospital with burns and fractures suffered in the fire that injured four other persons. She saved her own life by jumping from an upper floor of the four-story apartment house. The sixth victim, Ramon Planas, 43, also was buried Tuesday. Funeral arrangements for Roberto Rivera, 37, were not known. Arson is suspected in the fire that destroyed much of the interior of the four-story building.

Eyes have it, judge says

Pasquale Marzano's immediate future lies in his eyes. Marzano, sentenced to serve 20 years in prison for his role in the $4.3 million Purolator Security Inc. theft in 1974, Tuesday asked for a delay to Aug. 6 before going to prison so that he could wind up his affairs. Judge James B. Parsons of U.S. District Court, said he wanted to see Marzano Wednesday. "I don't know whether to trust him," Parsons said. "I don't know whether his eyes are shifty."

Illinois briefs

Mental patient seen day girl vanished

Two witnesses testified Tuesday in Taylorville that Michael Lett, accused of killing 12-year-old Cathy Jo Harris, was in Southern Illinois the day Cathy disappeared. Lett, 21, who escaped from an Indiana state mental hospital last April, is charged with aggravated kidnaping, murder, concealment of a murder, armed robbery, and taking indecent liberties with a child in the death of Cathy, a Newton, Ill., schoolgirl. Cathy disappeared April 19 while on her way home from a grocery store. Her body was found nine days later about 18 miles north of Newton in a wooded area. In testimony Tuesday, Tonoah French, 13, Olney, 20 miles due south of Newton, testified she saw Lett twice while walking to school early on the morning of April 19.

A state police detective, John W. Roberts Jr., said on May 28 he showed photographs of suspects in the Harris slaying to both Tonoah and a Newton housewife who said she saw Cathy and a man together the day of Cathy's disappearance. Both identified Lett's photograph of the eight shown to them.

RTA asks high court to release funds

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Lawyers for the Chicago-area Regional Transportation Authority Tuesday asked the Illinois Supreme Court to force Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett to release state funds earmarked for the authority.

Howlett, the suit said, has ordered that no state money be paid to the RTA until the courts rule on the legality of the authority's fiscal 1977 budget.

State law requires that the RTA Board adopt a budget by June 30 each year. This year's budget was adopted Monday after a prolonged dispute between Chicago and suburban board members. It was backdated to June 30, however.

HOWLETT, IN a letter to his employes, said he has decided to halt payments "because the budget was required to have been adopted by June 30, 1976, and because the (RTA budget) appropriated $16,255,063 more than the Illinois General Assembly appropriated for the RTA."

The suit said the RTA Board also has decided not to expend any money — including salaries for its employes — until after the courts resolve the budget problem.

The RTA was created by the legislature to oversee mass transit operations in the six-county Chicago area. Its primary function is to funnel state grants to transit systems within its jurisdiction.

The Illinois Supreme Court is in recess until mid-September. The justices could, however, decide the matter by telephone or call a special session to discuss it.

AFTER 20,000 MILES, most bicyclists might never want to see a bike again. Not so for Helen and David Cartwright of Perth, Australia. The two are visiting Wheeling before heading for a grand tour of the American West. They've been on the road since 1973.

Honeymooners midway through 3-yr. trip

Their bike trip hasn't gone flat

by DIANE MERMIGAS

David and Helen Cartwright are two of those rare people who have made their wildest dream a reality.

Their honeymoon has turned out to be a three-year, 20,000-mile bicycle trip through South America, Central America and the United States.

They have made their beds in abandoned railway stations, the hut of a Cuna Indian chief in a Panamanian rain forest and the comfortable homes of many hospitable acquaintances they've made along the way.

IT WAS ON IMPULSE that they traded their cars for 10-speed bicycles in their Australian homeland in 1973. He gave up his job as an attorney; she quit hers as a guidance counselor and they set off to see the world while they are still young.

The journey over endless blacktop roads and rugged dirt paths will probably end in another year they say, but for the past week it has brought them to the Northwest suburbs and to the Wheeling home of Phyllis Harmon, a leader of the League of American Wheelman bicycling group.

LAW, the national organization for bicyclists with headquarters in Palatine, came to the aid of the Cartwrights after their trip took a turn for the worse outside Bloomington, Ill., earlier this summer.

David, 37, was blown off his bike by a fast-moving truck that passed them on a rural highway south of Rockford. Bloomington residents, whom they had met while passing through the town earlier, took them in and nursed David until his broken shoulder healed.

He and his 27-year-old wife set out again for Chicago several weeks ago. They were in search of a safer highway when they contacted Mrs. Harmon and became acquainted with LAW.

THE CARTWRIGHTS say the generosity they have found at the Harmon house, 356 Robert Ave., has been equal to that extended to them throughout the United States.

In May, they set out from Miami, Fla., for Illinois and it took them four weeks to reach Bloomington when the accident occurred.

They've come a long way since they left their home in Perth, Australia, in October 1973 to come to Miami. From there, they set out on a bike trip around the entire South American coast, up through Central America and back to Florida.

"We've had lots of wonderful experiences that we'll never forget. The contrast between the poor countries of South American and the affluence of the United States is just overwhelming. Yet, people in both parts of the world have extended themselves to us in different ways," Cartwright said.

A BUENOS AIRES shop owner and his wife opened their house to the couple and brought them breakfast in bed every morning for five weeks, Mrs. Cartwright said.

There were, however, mornings when they woke up on sleeping bsgs in an Argentine forest, peering into machine gun barrels belonging to soldiers on maneuvers there.

Brazilian motorists ran them off the road, believing the cyclists to be peasants, while in other countries the couple was treated with high regard.

"The problem often was that accepting the kindness of the poor people there meant drinking untreated water and contracting dysentery or some other disease we'd fight to get over," Cartwright said.

Their experiences in the Chicago area have been a little different, to say the least.

THEY HAVE VISITED Chicago's Schwinn bicycle factory where officials were interested in knowing how well the couple's 10-speed Schwinn bikes have held up during the trip.

The company gave the couple two new bikes and has agreed to ship their old ones home to Australia.

Today, they will begin making their way toward the West Coast, through the Grand Canyon "to take a closer look at the U.S.," Cartwright said.

Eventually, the couple will write a book about their experiences, which they have recorded in a daily diary stashed along with sleeping bags, a tent, food, toiletries, books and casual clothing in bags attached to the back of their bikes.

Bicycling and camping your way across the continents is "the cheapest" way to travel, the Cartwrights admit. It is a joyful experience when the weather conditions are right, your health and the roads are good, and the scenery is so great.

"I guess I've always been a wanderer at heart. I wanted to see the world and find someone goofy enough to go along with me," said Cartwright.

Mrs. Cartwright, had to learn how to ride a bike before the trip but has had no trouble keeping an average 60-mile pace each day.

"Everything we've needed the past two years has been in our bags. Our life has been the road and the people and places there," Mrs. Cartwright said. "But you have to go home sometime."

Police seeking witnesses to Vargo's death

Arlington Heights police are seeking witnesses to the accident early Sunday that led to the death of Patrolman Alan J. Vargo.

Vargo, a two-year police veteran, was struck and killed by a car as he was directing traffic around the scene of an auto accident on Arlington Heights Road at Olive Street about 2 a.m.

Police said Vargo had parked his squad car with lights flashing and set flares along the roadway before the accident. Vargo was waving off motorists with his flashlight when he was struck, police said.

Capt. Maurice English said no one has come forward who saw Vargo get hit.

"WE HAVE PEOPLE who were there immediately before and immediately after he was hit. But no one who saw him get hit," English said.

According to police, traffic was heavy on Arlington Heights Road at the time of the incident.

"There has to be someone who saw the three seconds just before and just after," he said.

Police are asking anyone who was in the accident area to contact them at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., or to call 253-2340.

Timothy Draut, 23, of 746 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, is being held in lieu of $200,000 bond in connection with the death of Vargo, 24.

Draut is charged with reckless homicide, failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, driving too fast for conditions, improper lane usage, disobeying a police officer and driving while intoxicated.

6,000-mi. voyage a fantasy trip for 3 adventurers

by JUDIE BLACK

The shotgun Aleda Kresge and her two sailing companions kept on board their 35-foot sloop was there only for protection against drug pirates.

The gun ended up the reason the three were thrown in a Latin American jail, accused of running illegal guns.

The 60 hours Aleda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Kresge, of Arlington Heights, and her two male companions spent in jail in Belize, British Honduras, without food, proved the most harrowing experience in their 6,000-mile sailing trip. They began last November, leaving California where they bought and outfitted their $8,000 boat. Just last week they dropped anchor for the last time in Miami.

Dick Anderson, a sailing companion and high school teacher in Leadville, Colo., where 26-year-old Aleda was a practical nurse, said they were not the only American group victimized by police in local ports like Belize. He said American restaurant owners and other pleasure sailors were mistreated similarly.

"THE PLACE was a trap "for persons inexperienced in cruising, pleasure sailing with no set itinerary, Anderson said. He plans to write articles illustrated with photographs he took during the trip, to warn other sailors.

But the prison incident (the three were eventually released with the help of American embassy intervention and $500) didn't darken the remainder of the voyage.

"It was a pure fantasy trip," said Aleda, a 1968 graduate of Arlington High School.

The three began planning, organizing and studying 18 months before they cast off. They took 50 gallons of gasoline for their auxiliary engine, 45 gallons of drinking water, canned goods, powdered milk, corn meal (they all suffered from dysentery), an emergency locator beacon and inflatable emergency lifecraft. Outfitting the boat cost $7,000.

ANDERSON HAD SERVED in the Navy and was familiar with navigation techniques. Aleda had sailed often and the third, a member of a professional ski patrol in Aspen, Colo., spoke Spanish fluently. None had ever sailed, or cruised, long-distance.

But they were not alone, Aleda said. In one harbor they met three dozen other boats, piloted by sailors of varying experience. "The world's full of adventures," Anderson said. "It's just deciding when and what order to do them."

Anderson managed the Yukon River in a kayak and backpacked the more desolate trails in the Grand Canyon.

While cruising, one of the three sailors was always on watch. Sometimes they sailed all day and night, other times for only eight hours. They frequently "anchored out" and visited port cities, went scuba diving, snorkeling or sightseeing. It was a way to get away from each other and to explore.

"WHY SHOULD NUDES be second-class citizens?" asks James Wills, of 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., Hanover Park. He was arrested in July 1974 when he sunbathed nude in his backyard.

Nude sunbather's suit rejected by U.S. judge

James Wills, the Hanover Park man who has filed suit to prove he has a constitutional right to sunbathe nude in his back yard, has lost a round in court.

U. S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker Monday declined to hear Wills' suit, which asks that a permanent injunction be issued affirming Wills' right to appear nude on his property.

Wills, 52, of 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., filed suit March 31 to prevent "harassment" by police. The suit asked for $10,000 in damages from 2 arrests for backyard nudity in August 1973 and July 1974. He was found innocent in both instances.

WHEN CONTACTED Tuesday night, Wills said he will meet with his attorney, Frederick Cohn, of Chicago, Saturday to discuss the next move in his lawsuit.

"I'm really at a loss as to what's cooking right now," he said. referring to the legal complexity of the opinion Decker handed down when he declined to hear Wills' suit.

Judge Decker said in his opinion Wills' suit would best be handled by a state court judge.

In his suit, Wills argued that nudity "is a manifestation of his religious beliefs," and asked the judge to find nude sunbathing protected by the Constitution.

The suit alleged that actions by Hanover Park officials, Sheriff Richard J. Elrod and State's Atty. Bernard Carey against Wills' sunbathing placed "a destructive, chilling effect" upon his rights.

Wills, a marketing statistician for a housewares firm, has said he sunbathed nude to protest ancient beliefs that nudity is evil. He has said police violated his First Amendment right of freedom of expression and 14th Amendment guarantee of equal protection under the law.

Tune-up
by Ed Landwehr

Everything works better and lasts longer when it is properly maintained. Even our own body needs a check-up from time to time to catch and cure small ills. Your car, home heating system, appliances, all should have check-up service from period to period to prevent expensive breakdown.

So it is with your TV set. There are a couple of thousand working parts that are all dependent on each other for good results. At the first sign of malfunction, no matter how slight, the set should be given a check-up. It has been proven that the overall maintenance cost during the life of the set will be less and you get better viewing.

With our modern precise instruments at Landwehr's TV & Appliances, most TV service takes a half hour at most. We generally do it right in the home. Phone 255-0700 today.

Family finds city noises can have suburban ring

Today

Mike Klein's people

The Suburban Dream, Revisited:

Years and years ago, many folks looked around their Chicago neighborhoods and thought, "Ick," "Ugh" or some other guttural expression of distaste.

This began a great immigration to those recently discovered faraway meccas, which since have become known as the suburbs.

Chester and Marilyn Lustyk joined that emigration from Chicago 14 years ago. "I don't like looking in someone else's kitchen window," Marilyn said this week.

THEY HAD TWO young daughters, so the Lustyks chose a nice house just off Long Grove Road near Rand Road in Palatine Township.

Their dream was no different from the dream being coveted by so many city dwellers, folks like yourselves, or my parents. It is a dream still alive today.

They sought to escape the city with its sounds of automobile tires screeching long into the night, bright street lamps blazing into bedrooms and stoplights dressing each and every corner.

These people wanted to live someplace where you did not need police supervision to keep the streets safe for young children and where neighbors acted like friends, rather than like affronted wild boars.

So they came to the suburbs.

THAT IS why recent gripes from Marilyn Lustyk and her Pinehurst Manor neighbors are so interesting. It seems that their Suburban Dream has begun to backfire.

They are screaming these days about a portion of Long Grove Road that winds northeast off Rand Road. It is a dangerous corner where there have been two recent accidents and many other near misses.

Marilyn fears the screeching tires. "Kids use it for drag stripping," Marilyn said. "Back and forth, back and forth. It's a joke. You get paranoid.

"There was a character out here Saturday night. About midnight he started dragging. It lasted until about a quarter to one."

Marilyn and other Pinehurst Manor residents complained so long that two street lamps finally were installed at the corner, where a clear view is obstructed by numerous trees.

BUT THEY have been stymied in long-time efforts to have stoplights installed at Rand and Long Grove roads. That still might occur this year.

Marilyn Lustyk discussed the need for more police supervision of her neighborhood streets.

"I don't want to be bitchy. I just want something done," Marilyn said. "I want this road radar timed on weekends. They would make a mint, and I kid you not."

Residents also have requested guard rails to help minimize chances that local race car drivers will careen into their yards.

But rails cost money, about $4,500 for the set that would be required, and Palatine Township said it does not have the funds.

AND BESIDES, an inspector from the Cook County Highway Dept. ended that discussion when he recently visited and stated that guard rails are not necessary.

Those answers do not comfort Marilyn Lustyk. She described how a Palatine Police Dept. squad car slid off Long Grove Road into her backyard late one night during the Memorial Day weekend.

Slightly more than one week later, a school bus on its morning run also slid into her yard. There were no injuries in either accident.

She blames Rand Grove Village, a 212-unit low-and moderate-income housing development about 200 yards from her home, for the problems.

"They (the fast drivers) come from that moderate-income housing," Marilyn said. "There's not too much we can do about it. They drive around in junks. They have no insurance, no collateral to lose.

"We never had this problem until that housing complex went up," she said.

But the problem is not that simple.

LONG GROVE Road is old, narrow and unstriped. It was constructed for occasional use by farmers, not for the continual pounding that it now receives.

During one 10-minute period shortly after 3:30 p.m. I counted 20 autos which passed Marilyn's house. "And that's not even the rush hour," she said.

The road is poorly marked. Two signs indicate an approaching curve, and two others warn drivers of heavy trucks to stay away.

There are no speed-limit signs. Those reportedly will be installed, perhaps by next week, along with roadside reflectors.

Even then, Marilyn wondered, what good are signs if few police officers supervise the area?

"YOU CAN PUT up 50 million signs on both sides of the road," Marilyn said. "It doesn't mean a thing unless you have somebody out here to enforce them."

Pinehurst Manor uses services provided by the undermanned Cook County Sheriff's police. "I didn't see one (squad car) yesterday," Marilyn said. "Not one."

The situation worsens because Rand Grove Village residents have no direct access to Rand Road. Homeowners in Pinehurst Manor cannot reach Dundee Road without first traveling on Rand.

So that little section of Long Grove Road must absorb nearly all the traffic.

Marilyn sat in her kitchen. She watched traffic pass on her suburban road, where everything would be fine if there were more signs, guard rails, stoplights, police supervision and fewer screeching tires.

"We moved out here to get away from the jungle," Marilyn said. That was 14 years ago. And they did escape, for a few years. But now the jungle has found them once again. It always does.

1,000 youths to attend 4-H fair

Nearly 1,000 area youths will participate in the North Cook County 4-H Club Fair July 30-Aug. 1 at the corner of Northwest Highway and Kelsey Road in Barrington.

Boys and girls from suburbs including Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Buffalo Grove will take part in exhibits, games and other activities.

The theme of this year's fair, "4-H '76 — Progress in America," will be presented through about 3,000 exhibits on topics ranging from conservation and field crops to engineering and photography.

EXHIBITS WILL be judged in 25 different divisions.

Other activities include an open class horse show for all ages, a flea market, a hot-air balloon launch, dog and cat shows and a quilt raffle.

There also will be free games for children and adults, including milk drinking, frog leaping, greased pigs, rolling pins and a nationally sanctioned chicken fly-in.

The chicken fly-in is the state championship meet in conjunction with the fifth Intenrational Chicken Flying Meet. The winning chicken is the one that flies the farthest.

EIGHT NORTH Cook Coutny 4-H members were named to the 1976 king and queen court, including Holly Vogt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Vogt of Palatine.

Admission is free, but parking costs $2 per day or $3 for all three days.

Nobody makes them better.

Swim fund-raiser for heart society

Northwest suburban park districts will participate in a "Swim for Heart" fund-raiser Aug. 8 to benefit the Chicago Heart Assn. and its suburban divisions.

Swimmers who participate in the swim-a-thon will secure sponsors who pledge a specified amount for every lap sum. Each lap is 75 feet long.

More than 50 swimming pools in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties will compete in the event. Individual swimmers will be grouped in two age categories — 12 and under and 13 and over.

A 10-speed bicycle will be given to the swimmer in each category who raises the most money. Other prizes also will be given.

Each swimmer will receive an "I Swam for Heart" patch.

Interested persons should contact their local park district to find out about participating pools or call the Chicago Heart Assn. at 346-4675.

Local park districts participating include Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

Roosevelt reunion

A class reunion is being planned for the January 1952 graduating class of Roosevelt High School, Chicago. Members of the class interested in attending should call 675-1864 or 251-4796.

Guess which is going hurt most—your hide or my pocketbook?

The way we see it

Law a forceful reminder of parent responsibility

It isn't often that we find ourselves in disagreement with the generally common sense perspectives of Mayor Robert Teichert of Mount Prospect, on people and the state of affairs in his community.

But we do take exception to the philosophical arguments he offered in opposing a new village anti-vandalism ordinance.

The ordinance would have assigned parents some burden of responsibility for their minor children's acts. Parents could be fined between $500 and $1,000 for property damage caused by their children between 11 and 18 years of age.

The village is looking for new weapons to fight vandalism and the proposed ordinance was modeled after one in Deerfield.

In opposing it, Teichert said:

"I believe the (current vandalism) ordinance is good as it is — everyone is responsible for his own actions. We don't have control over our children. The business of taking out community frustrations on individual parents is wrong. I have found it impossible to control anyone but myself. I don't believe in vicarious liability."

In an absolute sense, Mayor Teichert is right. We do not control the acts of anyone but ourselves. We could lock our children in their rooms and still not control their behavior absolutely.

But absolute positions can cause us to stray from reality. The reality of child rearing is that parents can guide, influence and control their youngsters. In fact, it is their responsibility to do so.

Children do not grow in a vacuum. How they think and act as young teenagers reflects not only the degree of direct physical control currently exerted over them by their parents, but also what has gone into their early upbringing.

If parents have brought them up as scofflaws, that is what they will be. If we indulge ourselves in a little innocent cheating here and there, a little winking at the rules and laws that govern our society, the lesson is not lost on our children.

They may well respond to our example by spray painting expletives in four-foot letters on the school wall.

Even the most conscientiously reared youngster may fall in with bad companions. Pinocchio wasn't the first, nor will he be the last, good little boy to be led astray by evil companions.

The tragedy of suburban drug use is that so many good kids get involved in a youthful version of keeping up with the Joneses. We suspect this is what Mayor Teichert had in mind, that even the best youths with the best parents get in trouble.

There are ways to reduce the risk of this happening. They may sound old-fashioned, and they certainly would not be popular with the kids, but we don't always like what is good for us.

Parents could require their young teenagers to be home at a reasonable hour. There is little reason for an 11-year-old to be out after dark, when much of the vandalism occurs.

Parents could require that their children tell them where they are. Freedom to roam at will and plenty of idle hours invite kids to get involved in mischief.

Parents could forbid their kids to hang around with the known troublemakers.

There is nothing wrong with family closeness nor with parental control. In fact, we think it is absolutely essential if vandalism is to be brought under control and juvenile experimenting with drugs and higher crime are to be reduced to manageable proportions.

In the best of worlds, all parents would recognize this. But the reality of this world is that some people need reminding. A law punishing parents for the nastiness of their minor children would be a forceful reminder of parental responsibility.

Further legal action seems futile

There comes a point where the battle must be declared lost.

That point has been reached for the City of Des Plaines in its bitter court battle with the Metropolitan Sanitary District over construction of a sewage treatment plant at Oakton and Elmhurst roads.

The city council recently voted to pursue its case against the MSD plant through another series of court cases — a move Mayor Herbert Behrel termed a waste of money.

The city has been fighting the MSD since 1966, trying to prevent construction of the plant which is located directly across the street from homes.

Behrel pointed out that the city has spent more than $28,000 in opposing the plant and has lost every major court decision and every appeal to federal agencies with control over the facility.

Aldermen voted to appeal a recent U.S. District Court decision that the MSD has taken adequate steps to ensure the health and safety of residents.

The plant is now under construction, and although we have long agreed with the opposition of the city, it is time for Des Plaines to end the fight and live with the decison of the courts.

We don't expect the people of Des Plaines ever to like the fact that the plant is located in their back yards.

But the plant is now a fact and all that is left for the city to do is monitor its construction to make sure the MSD lives up to its promise that the facility will pose no safety problems for residents.

Children need busing to end traffic hazard

School Dist. 54 Manual Sec. 4.31-Transportation of regular students. Paragraph 4 reads:

"Where traffic is too hazardous for walking — such decisions shall be made by the superintendent. Pupil population density, bus capacity, main traffic routes, economy of operations, hazardous traffic areas, condions of roads and minimizing travel time will be taken into consideration when routes are planned."

Sunset Hills and Meadowknolls areas are put into most every mentioned category. Main traffic routes, conditions of roads, hazardous traffic areas and travel time, are not being considered. The school board is completely ignoring its own manual. Nerge Road, the street the school children are to be shepherded across by a crossing guard, has a vehicular traffic of 13,000 cars a day. Roselle police and Cook County sheriff police have advised the school board that the safety of the 205 school children with a crossing guard would be a hazardous undertaking.

The physical characteristics and traffic conditions that will affect the safety of the 205 school children along the routes traveled to get to this "launching pad" (that the school proposes) has been totally ignored by this board.

School pedestrian safety must be more than the arbitrary assignment of a crossing guard, or the installation of a traffic signal. The school board does not show a balance of education, enforcement and engineering, as all routes traveled by the school children have a conflict with vehicular traffic.

Travel time for school children from Wise and Roselle roads to Nerge School takes 30 minutes. I live at Blackhawk and Laurel Lane Dr. My eight-year-old son and I walked to Nerge school on a dry clear day, steady pace in walking, and it took us 23 minutes.

With all these elements against the school children, we ask for subsidized busing to assure the safe crossing of our children, and not a "launching pad" on which they wait to cross the death highway.

If parents can't be held liable, then who can?

The article, "Vandal law opposed by Teichert," is the most disgusting thing I have read in a long time. What are we taxpayers supposed to do — pay the high taxes to support schools and then pay for vandalism too?

Parents are responsible for their children until they are of age, and if they aren't taught to know better than to vandalize, then I would say the PARENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE for their vandalism and destruction. IF NOT — THEN WHO?

I haven't had a child in school for 20 years and am still paying the high taxes for schools. School taxes should be charged according to the number of children per family in school. Maybe then we about to be senior citizens who have worked all of our lives wouldn't have to worry so much about being able to keep on with a decent living and keeping our homes we have worked so hard to buy and maintain.

Isn't there anyone in the political world willing to step out and help the ordinary working people when it comes to the high taxes? When the average person can't make ends meet — what do we do? We have to economize, but not the political world — their attitude is — just tax the people some more. It's a vicious circle.

HURRAY for Village Attny. John Zimmerman. Keep up the good work and see this through. I am sure there are many of the residents of Mount Prospect who feel the same way. Why not solicit some help?

A victory for Army, parks

For more than 10 years, residents of Arlington Heights and the surrounding communities have been engaged in negotiations, discussions and arguments with the United States Army and the United States Navy over the future of the former Nike Site at Central and Wilke roads in Arlington Heights.

Local residents have gone to Washington to meet with their representatives and with military officials and high-level military officials have come from Washington to the community to meet with local residents. It has been a tedious struggle for all concerned.

HAPPILY, IT IS finally over. A compromise between the Army and the Arlington Heights Park District has been reached, and residents of the area will soon have a new golf course while the Army Reserves will continue to hold the property needed to conduct necessary reserve activities.

To mark the occasion, a very exciting dedication program has been planned for Saturday, July 24, at the Reserve Center. The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a concert by the 81st Army Band and formal dedication ceremonies will begin at 10 a.m. and will include a description of the golf course, dedication of a Nike missile and the "sinking of the first putt."

In conjunction with the dedication, the Army is conducting an open house and demonstration of the many activities which are taking place at the Reserve Center.

Hopefully, residents of the area will take advantage of this opportunity to express their appreciation to the Army and the local officials who maintained the long struggle to reach a compromise. The dedication progam and open house are a fitting conclusion to years of hard work.

Lawn sprinklers chided

On the last several allowed "water days," I decided to get in the car and take a drive through Arlington Heights. I particularly wanted to observe the more "affluent" areas of our village.

It was most distressing to me to discover how many people are so terribly concerned with having "lush, green lawns." In fact, the larger and more elegant the house the more sprinklers I saw being used. One particular "estate" had sprinklers going full blast.

Why don't you people of Arlington Heights (and other towns as well) wake up. Don't you realize what a potential hazard you are creating not only for yourselves, but for the rest of the town? A fat lot of good your lovely little green lawns are going to be when your house burns to the ground.

Do you realize what water pressure is? Do you have any idea how much pressure and force is needed to successfully fight a fire? Call your local fire department and find out, or perhaps you really prefer learning the hard way.

It angers me to see this wasteful, selfish apathy. I keep remembering a movie called "Soylent Green" and keep remembering that people laughed at Jules Verne when he predicted space ships and men on the moon.

Mrs. Judy Forsberg

Worthy of note

My husband suffered a heart attack while watching a Little League ball game on July 13. I would like to thank the paramedics from the firehouse on Arlington Heights Road. They were competent and courteous. And most of all, thanks to Mr. Herbert who spent those first difficult hours with me at the hospital. My husband is getting a little better day by day and we are hoping for a speedy recovery.

Larger disease

Regarding the continuing conflict concerning the abortion issue at Northwest Community Hospital. Several of the writers to this column have cited the increase in child abuse as a defense of abortion on demand. Contrariwise we maintain that killing has an effect all its own and tends to intensify the tendency toward violence. Violence is certainly increasing in the form of child abuse. We contend that abortion, instead of decreasing child abuse, increases child abuse and other forms of violence. Abortion is the treatment of a symptom of a larger disease afflicting our society and is not the cure. We hope the hospital board will reverse their decision.

Lahti story left him cold

A Herald staff report appearing in the July 13 edition was headlined "Lahti first-class travel on college trips revealed." Well, that caught my eye as I guess it was supposed to, and I was encouraged to read on to see what it was that was "revealed."

I learned that The Herald reporters unearthed: (1) Harper College President Robert Lahti flies first class on college business trips though the college policy is to travel coach fare; (2) Dr. Lahti's wife and daughter traveled with him on a business trip to Washington, D.C. and a business trip to Seattle, the cost of which fares he paid himself; (3) that Dr. Lahti arranged for personal flight reservations and billings through the school's TWA charge account and always reimbursed the college.

NOW THAT I'VE read the report of revelations I must ask you why in the world did you feel that it was newsworthy? So the college president sometimes goes first-class when the "troops" go coach. Big news? A pro bono publico investigation?

It seems to be peanuts to me which brings me back to your headline, which in light of the innocuous body of the story, seems close to "dirty pool" by reason of the implication, albeit unintentional, that there exists some criticizable conduct conveyed by the titillating word "revealed."

Since there was nothing even interesting in the report, except of course the headline, wouldn't it have been better to have waited for something worth reporting.

TM: no chanting

The Northwest Suburban Center for the Transcendental Meditation program would like to commend Laura Schmalbach for the excellent reporting she displayed in the article published in The Herald of July 8. We enjoyed the article and thought it presented the transcendental meditation program in the proper perspective. However, we thought you would be interested in knowing that a few points were not correct, e.g. the TM technique does not involve chanting. The technique allows the mind to experience finer states of thought while the mind remains alert. These were small points, and we mention them only because we realize that you intended to present only factual and true information.

Tax inequity? Visit your assessor

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

by ROBERT S. ROSEFSKY

A neighborhood party last weekend turned into a discussion of property taxes, and I learned that my taxes are about $200 higher than each of my adjoining neighbors. Our houses were built by the same builder at the same time, and they're virtually identical. Why should I be paying a bigger bill, and what can I do about it? If this goes back a couple of years, which I think it might, can I get a rebate for my overpayments?

It's bound to happen: In every community there are inequities in the property tax rolls. They may be due to unintentional human error made during the appraisal process, or the push of a wrong button on an adding machine or computer. Whatever the reason, if an inequity runs against you, nobody but yourself can take the necessary steps to correct it. And, uncorrected, the error can mean hundreds of dollars every year flowing out of your pocket.

In most every community, homeowners receive perodical notice of their current assessment, and attention should be paid to it with respect to any changes from the prior year. But checking your own assessment doesn't help if you are unfairly assessed with respect to comparable houses in your neighborhood (comparable means houses of similar size, location, quality and age).

A visit to your local tax assessor's office should disclose the assessment of all of the properties you need to know about. Ask the clerks to help you understand the material in the tax rolls. If you know which houses are comparable to yours, you can determine from the rolls whether or not they are comparably assessed with your own.

Most communities have a specific time during which protests can be made. If the time has elapsed for this year, you'll have to wait until the next period comes around.

The assessor's office can explain the steps to take to file a protest. Generally, the initial steps don't require an attorney, although if there is enough at stake you might want to obtain one, as well as an appraiser.

Though the procedures will vary from place to place, the initial protest usually prompts a review of the data by the assessor. If he rejects your protest, which is likely unless there has been an obvious error in the data, you'll be entitled to a hearing. Following that are appeal procedures, during which the need for an attorney may be more obvious.

It's up to you to establish why you have been unfairly appraised. This may consist simply of giving evidence that comparable youses in your immediate vicinity are assessed at a lower level. If houses in your neighborhood are of varying sizes, you may have to call in your pocket calculator ot determine if the valuation per square foot is similar for otherwise comparable houses.

I doubt that you'll have much success on getting a rebate, since the rolls are closed each year after the protest deadline has passed. But a negligent error by the assessor might work in your favor.

U.S. growth slows as inflation rises

Massive inventory stabilization slowed the nation's growth rate to 4.4 per cent in the second quarter of 1976 — less than half that of the previous three months — and the inflation rate climbed to 5 per cent, the government said Tuesday.

John Kendrick, the Commerce Department's top economist, said the picture presented by the new statistics is not as bad as it might at first appear.

He said the slowdown in the economic growth rate appeared "temporary," while the inflation figures reflect a stabilization of food and energy prices rather than a "heating up of inflation."

The Commerce Dept. report showed the "real" U. S. Gross National Product — the dollar value of the nation's total output of goods and services, minus inflation — increased $13.4 billion between April and June.

THE SECOND quarter increase was the fifth consecutive quarterly rise in the "real" GNP since the nation began pulling out of last year's recession. Economists feel a growth rate of 4 per cent is needed in order to keep unemployment from rising.

During the first three months of the year, the GNP went up by 9.2 per cent, according to a revised estimate.

The nation's inflation rate, which is measured by the GNP chain price index, went from 4.3 per cent in the first quarter to 5 per cent in the second.

Personal income advanced only 0.4 per cent in June, the smallest one-month increase in the past five months, the department figures showed.

According to the latest figures, the adjusted GNP now stands at $1.259 trillion, 1.4 per cent above the $1.243 trillion mark that was recorded in the fourth quarter of 1973, before the economic downturn began.

Retail sales, which make up roughly two-thirds of the real GNP, rose "smartly" in June and are expected to continue to perk up, Kendrick said. He said business investment also is expected to increase.

Tax cut extension voted by Senate

The Senate voted Tuesday to extend all current tax cuts at least through the end of next year. The action, which must go back to the House as a part of a major tax revision bill, would guarantee that no one's income tax withholding rate will rise on Sept. 1, when a temporary freeze on withholding rates expires. The 66-to-28 vote reverses a Senate Finance Committee decision to make some of the cuts permanent, such as the increased standard deduction, but to allow a special $35 per person tax credit to die June 30.

The cuts originally were scheduled to expire July 1, but Congress passed a temporary freeze on withholding rates while the Senate continued its deliberations on the overall bill. That bill came under fire from tax "reformers," including Kennedy and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. They, in turn, came under fire from the finance panel.

White House Press Sec. Ron Nessen said President Ford will send Congress a message this week calling for action before summer adjournment on the tax cuts and other of his Republican measures stalled by the Democratic lawmakers. During a morning cabinet meeting on the status of Ford's legislative proposals, Nessen said, Director James Lynn of the Office of Management and Budget was pessimistic on the outlook for Ford's call for a $10 billion cut in income and estate inheritance taxes. He quoted Lynn as saying: "The tax cuts appear to be going nowhere because Congress has chosen to spend the money instead of returning the money to the people in the form of tax cuts. It looks like you can say bye bye to tax cuts."

2 of 3 striking unions settle

The Westinghouse Electric Corp. Tuesday announced it had reached agreement on new wage contracts with two of three striking unions. The company said settlements were reached with the International Union of Electrical Workers, representing 21,900 employes at 36 plants, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, representing 12,800 employes at 49 plants. The IBEW immediately signed the agreement, the company said. Negotiators for the third striking union, the United Electrical Workers, representing 6,500 employes at 13 plants, still were studying the new contract proposal. Contracts included raises of $1.10 an hour over three years and nearly unlimited inflation protection.

Meanwhile, thousands of Northern California cannery workers went on strike Tuesday in the midst of the state's harvest season. Industry spokesmen said the walkout raised the specter of rotting fruits and vegetables and higher prices at the produce market. Roving bands of militant mine pickets idled about 5,000 miners in the West Virginia coalfields. Oregon state grain inspectors went on strike and set up picket lines at the ports of Portland, Astoria and Pendleton. Longshoremen refused to cross the lines.

The Mount Prospect State Bank will sponsor a Squirrel's Club Week July 23 through July 31, when prizes will be given to club members. The Squirrel's Club is a children's organization teaching savings and banking education. "Filbert T. Squirrel" will participate in the coming event.

Productivity seminar

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce announced that it will sponsor a short course in "getting more productivity and profit from your people" Oct. 18 and 19.

The course will be held at a site in Elk Grove Village to be announced later, said association Pres. Jerry Capizzi. The program leader will be Jim Hooker, former co-director of the Illinois Institute of Applied Psychology. His Chicago-based firm specializes in corporate organizational planning and manpower development programs.

Stocks in 4th losing day; Dow falls 2.54 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — Losing for the fourth consecutive session, the stock market retreated along a broad front Tuesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange following reports of a slowdown in the economy.

The major price depressant was the Commerce Department's report the Gross National Product, stripped of inflation, rose only 4.4 per cent in the second quarter, down from the revised 9.2 per cent rise in the first period.

Most analysts expected the showdown, however. The major uncertainty confronting Wall Street is the outlook for the near future. The White House last Friday predicted the GNP would grow by 6.8 per cent for the whole year, up from its earlier prediction of 6.2 per cent.

AGAINST THAT background, the Dow Jones industrial average, a 2.38-point loser Monday, fell another 2.54 points Tuesday to 988.29, the lowest level since it closed at 985.92 June 15. The closely watched average has been in a tailspin since reaching a 41-month high of 1,011.21 July 12.

Generally, the Dow outperformed the rest of the market. The NYSE common stock index dropped 0.33 to 55.42 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 20 cents.

Declines routed advances, 1,043 to 417, among the 1,885 issues crossing the tape. The gap had been wider earlier, but narrowed late in the day after the Senate voted to extend individual tax cuts — begun in 1975 — through the end of 1977.

(Standard & Poor's new 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 0.57 to 103.72.)

Volume totaled 18,810,000 shares, compared with 18,200,000 traded Monday.

Investors also were inhibited by fears the Federal Reserve Board would tighten credit in light of a recent $2.6 billion increase in the nation's money supply. But they have been unable to perceive any major change in the Fed's accommodative policy.

Prices closed lower in moderately active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by eight cents. Volume totaled 2,400,000 shares, compared with 2,320,000 traded Monday.

You can find their hands pushing new mothers to their cars and stuffing envelopes for political causes. They help young children struggle with syllables when teachers are too busy. And they raise thousands of dollars for underprivileged citizens.

Volunteers can be found everywhere in our society.

Yet some think it's touch and go whether volunteerism can survive. In the past 10 to 20 years more and more socially oriented jobs have been taken over by men and women as money-earning occupations. And the volunteer's image is gradually being debased.

"FOR YEARS volunteers were considered to be little old ladies who weren't too smart and who were the society-flitting type," said Jane-Renee Weakley of the Volunteer Services Bureau in Arlington Heights.

But the facts don't support the image, she said. One in four women volunteers her time in the United States; one in five men does so.

A Census Bureau survey indicates that about 37 million citizens over the age of 13 volunteered in the year ending April 1974. Americans between the ages of 25 and 44 — when people are busiest with family and careers — comprised the largest segment.

And nearly 45 per cent of all volunteers have four or more years of college, according to the survey. Most volunteer their time in religious activities, followed by education, health and civic duties. Politics and justice volunteers make up the smallest segment.

BUT CERTAIN groups in the Women's Movement have called volunteer work other than political work "a ripoff." It's a way to keep women from being recognized as professionals and from being adequately compensated with money, their theory goes.

"If a person has a full life outside of volunteering, it's okay," commented Barbara Birkhead, president of the northwest suburban National Organization for Women (NOW). "But I would not like to see men and women whose life is just centering around volunteering."

"First people should try to find (paying) jobs which are rewarding with economic gain," she said.

It's economics — not the tasks of, say, envelope stuffing — that's at the heart of NOW's objections to volunteering.

"ECONOMIC GAIN means power in our society," Ms. Birkhead maintains. "People with money and power are making the decisions in this world.

"I think it's important for women to realize they might be trading something monetary and rewarding when they volunteer their time."

But many women disagree.

"I don't think it's demeaning not to get paid for what you do with your time," said Terri Ulsmann, head of volunteers at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, where 263 volunteers worked last year.

And Olive Werner, Rolling Meadows, agreed. Mrs. Werner, a 74-year-old grandmother, volunteers 25 hours a week at Clearbrook Center, a school for retarded children. She was recently named Clearbrook's volunteer of the year.

"IF I TOOK MONEY for volunteering, I wouldn't feel good about it," she said. "When I go home at night I'm tired. But I'm so satisfied . . . "

However, personal satisfaction is only one reason for volunteering time, and it isn't necessarily the most common one.

"For many women volunteering is the first step to going back to work," said Mrs. Weakley of the Volunteer Services Bureau.

After long absence from the work force, many women are not sure they can cope with the 40-hour work week plus care for a family, she explained. And some women are not sure they will like doing what they did in their earlier careers.

"Some women call and say they are thinking of going back to school to be, say, an RN (Registered Nurse). But they say they don't know if they want to be around sick people all the time," said Mrs. Weakley.

"AND, THROUGH MY own experience, volunteering is a way of going back to a new schedule," she continued. "I hadn't worked out of the house for 18 years. I started out volunteering one day, then two, then a few days. It was easiest for me that way and it was easier for the kids to adjust."

In situations like Mrs. Weakley's, where a woman might be apprehensive about working, volunteering, instead of seeking paid work, might be valid, said Julie Sass of the Minority Information Referral Center in Des Plaines.

"But in some cases, women volunteer for jobs where a man might come in for the same work and demand a salary," she said.

"WE HAVE TO GET tougher about it. Women should look at their volunteer jobs and see if they can get money. There's a lot of money around and women are naive about it," she said.

However, Mrs. Weakley said the money isn't necessarily available to pay volunteer jobs. The Census Bureau study estimated it would take three and a half million paid persons to replace the service done by volunteers. "Society could not afford that," she argued.

Besides, most women feel they are serving a cause when they volunteer their time, said Sheila Schwartz, Hoffman Estates, regional president of ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation Training), a Jewish philanthropic organization.

"Why pay $3 an hour for someone to stuff envelopes?" she asked.

HOWEVER, MRS. SCHWARTZ was concerned about finances and the difficulty in finding volunteers.

"I'm costing my husband money," she explained. She averages 25 hours a week working with ORT, makes hundreds of telephone calls, has to find babysitters and pay for transportation. As president, she is partially reimbursed, but most volunteers are not compensated for their expenses at all.

"Many people won't take on a commitment with volunteer organizations because they know they'll lose money," she said. "A lot of women are going back to work instead, which brings on a problem in getting volunteers to work for an organization."

"I think the government should help encourage volunteers," said Mrs. Schwartz, who felt that tax credit and Social Security credit would be one way to acknowledge needed volunteered work.

MARGARET MEAD, A noted anthropologist, also supports tax and Social Security benefits for volunteers. "It is high time we acknowledge that volunteers should get something as well as give something. Americans never have believed wholeheartedly that virtue should be its sole — as well as its own — reward," she wrote in an essay for Redbook magazine (September, 1975).

But the prospects of the government encouraging volunteer work through benefits is pretty dismal.

"I think it's vital we have a volunteer program in this country," explained Virginia Macdonald, Republican assemblywoman from Arlington Heights. "But I don't know that government could support the concept that Social Security should be given. It would be difficult for government to assess which types of volunteering would qualify . . .

"DO YOU SAY TO hospital volunteers that they are not eligible while those in other programs are?" she asked.

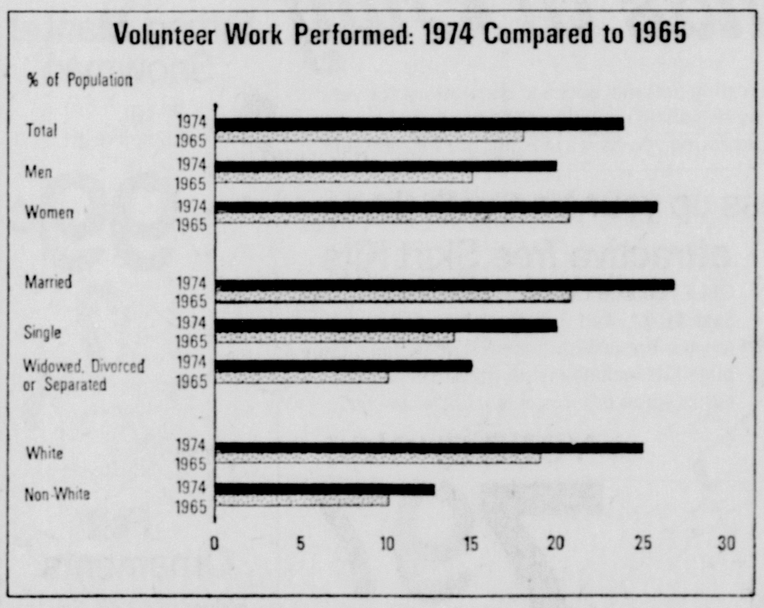
And what about those involved in the Little League programs, or shelter houses or Boy Scouts? "Volunteers are people whose caring and energy are vital to our society," said Mrs. Macdonald. "But we'd find it hard to develop a government program of benefits for them."

Instead of benefits, Jane-Renee Weakley, Julie Sass and others believe the concept of volunteering should be given more respect. Volunteers should be treated as valuable employes, and they should be given responsibility, said Mrs. Weakley.

"VOLUNTEERS ARE to provide what cannot be paid," she said. "There are many things you cannot put a price on."

"And who's to say to another woman that she can't volunteer her time if that's what she wants to do?"

"I don't think it's demeaning to volunteer and help a cause or people," she concluded. "What's demeaning is not to do what is needed."



The Cornaro: she set example for all women

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

Elena Lucrezia Cornar Piscopia. You may never have heard this name before, but on June 28, 1978, universities throughout the world will celebrate her graduation from the University of Padua (Italy), where in 1678 she received her doctorate in philosophy.

What's so special about the Cornaro, the name by which she is universally known and one that tells a remarkable story?

The Cornaro was the first woman in the world to receive a university degree. Although her life lasted a tragically brief 38 years, she gained worldwide recognition for her brillance and efforts to gain admittance into the world of theology.

She held public disputations in Latin and Greek which were marked by the attendance of European religious and secular scholars.

She made application to take examinations for the doctor of theology degree and was approved by the rector of the university, but the Church (Roman Catholic) was unwilling to have this degree conferred on a woman.

After many appeals, she did, however, receive her doctor of philosophy degree but not before facing her examiners and an audience consisting, this time, of not only scholastic and religious leaders but political personalities as well. The ceremonies drew such a large attendance they had to be transferred from the university to the great Cathedral of Padua.

It has been said that although she received her degree with all the ornate symbolism of the day — a laurel wreath on her head, a heavy ring on her finger and a "mozetta" or cape on her shoulders — the examinations were "rigorous."

When she died, she asked to be clothed in the black habit of the Monks of Subiaco and was interred in the Benedictine mortuary of the Basilica of Saint Justina.

The university struck a medal to "a woman unique and without example" in her honor. Her ministering to the poor and her devout religious observance were legendary and inconsistent with the social position and wealth of her noble Venetian background.

In 1905 when the Gothic Thompson Memorial Library was built at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a stained glass window was included for the Cornaro.

Later, the University of Pittsburgh placed a mural of her, created by a noted Italian painter, in its Nationality Rooms.

Three hundred years have passed since the Cornaro, wearing the Benedictine Oblate habit and forsaking earthly pleasures, left her brilliant mark for others to follow. It will be interesting to observe the steps that other women will take in the field of education, but particularly theology in the next few years since we are already seeing the struggle for equality in this area.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Husband's medicines are worry to wife

My husband is 45 years old, 6 foot 3 and weighs 190 pounds. He runs about eight miles a week in four periods, swims a mile three times a week, plays tennis at least once a week, often two or three hours on Saturday and Sunday in summer.

I am very conscious of nutrition and he has a good diet. Even so, for a number of years he has been taking vitamin supplements, including extra vitamin C (500 milligrams per day) which I don't feel necessary in view of his balanced diet.

Recently he had a company physical and has received $35 worth of pills with no explanation except to take daily. He gets Cyclospasmol for his Raynaud's disease, which I assume he will take only in coldest weather. The disease does not really bother him except that his fingers turn white when it is cold. He is to take Sterazolidin for his occasional complaints of tennis elbow, which has never been severe enough to prevent him from accepting any invitation to play. He also gets Colbenemid because on three separate occasions during a three-week period, his uric acid count has been high. He had been complaining about a sore second toe during the jogging and tennis.

The doctor who prescribed all these pills is a board certified internist and undoubtedly capable. But I feel that he may be catering to mild hypochondria and I am somewhat concerned about the interaction of all these pills, since at the moment my husband is taking all three in addition to his vitamins. Have you any comment?

Yes, I have a comment. appreciate your concern, but it is misplaced. It is easy for you to say your husband's white fingers in cold weather don't bother him, but he may be a better judge of how his fingers feel. It so happens that Cyclospasmol is not effective if used sporadically as you suggest only in coldest weather.

Anyone, particularly a man, since men are more susceptible to its complications, with abnormally high uric acid levels should be taking medicine to control it. This goes double if the man has symptoms. Untreated high uric acid levels often lead to gradual changes that could be prevented by the good treatment your husband is receiving.

Your husband would not be the first person with some elbow problems who persists in playing tennis and that is no argument against him having medicines for it.

You needn't worry about the interaction of the various medicines and vitamins that your husband is taking. You are probably right that he doesn't need the extra vitamin C, but in that amount it is not likely to hurt him either. I would be more concerned about the eggs you feed him regularly that you mentioned in the rest of your letter describing your healthy diet for him.

It sounds to me as if your husband is fortunate to have a good doctor who is doing his best to not only help your husband with his present problems but help keep him in good health for the future. You should be pleased, not concerned.

Oven can substitute for outdoor grill

The last fryer I bought had attached to it a recipe for marinating it, then cooking it outside on a grill. Seemed to me it ought to work just as well baked in the oven. Cut up the chicken and put it in a bowl. Over it I poured a mixture of one-half cup reconstituted orange juice, one-fourth cup corn oil, one teaspon salt, one-half teaspoon marjoram, one-half teaspoon basil, one-half teaspoon garlic salt and one-half teaspoon pepper. Turned it over once, letting it stand for one hour. Then put the chicken, uncovered, in a baking pan in a 250-degree oven for about 45 minutes. Basted it several times with the marinade. It was tender and absolutely delicious.

Dear Dorothy: What can you do to keep ants from coming out of small cracks in the sidewalk? — Mrs. Albert Rado

The insecticides recommended to eliminate ants are chlordane (hard to find now), diazinon, lindane or malathion. A kettle of boiling water ought to take care of it, I would think, in case there is an ant hill nearby.

Dear Dorothy: I like to fry fish in my iron skillet but am stumped on how to get the fishy odor out. Any ideas? — Joyce Marrero

With iron as porous as it is, I like the method suggested by a reader who cut up a piece of celery with leaves on it, put it in the skillet filled with water, then brought it to a boil. Washed with sudsy water later, the fishy odor will have disappeared.

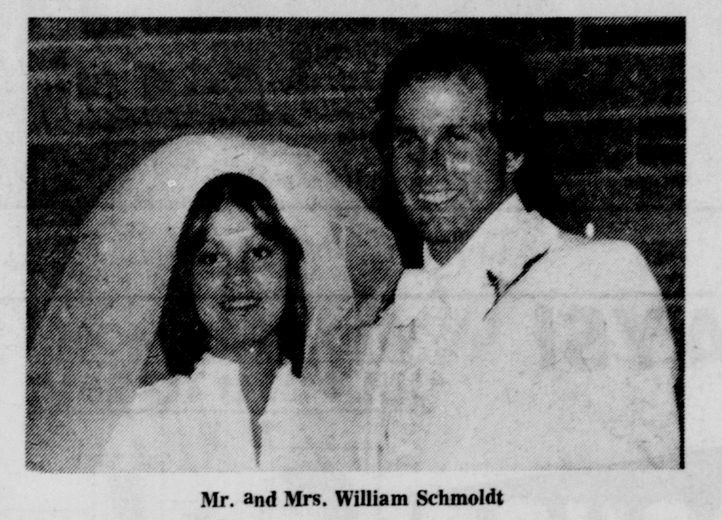
Betty Dufelmeier—William Schmoldt

The Lake of the Ozarks was the honeymoon destination of Betty Ann and William O. Schmoldt following their June 19 wedding in Arenzville, Ill.

The former Betty Dufelmeier is the daughter of the Melvin Dufelmeiers, Arenzville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Schmoldt, Mount Prospect. The couple will be living in Arlington Heights.



Mr. and Mrs. William Schmoldt

Betty attended Western Illinois University, where her husband graduated in 1975 after attending Prospect High. He is employed at Robertshaw Controls Co., Elk Grove Village, and Winkelman's Bike Shop, Arlington Heights.

MUFFY SWAGMEYER, Chapin, Ill., was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Sandy Boehs, Chapin, Janet Headon and Dawn Myers of Jacksonville, Ill., and Tina Predan, Berwyn. All wore matching gowns of apricot jersey with short chiffon capes and carried nosegays of apricot and white carnations with baby's breath.

The bride chose a crepe gown trimmed with Chantilly lace and a triple tiered fingertip veil. She carried a cascade of coral roses, white carnations and lily of the valley entwined with ivy.

Best man was Vern Newcomb, Mount Prospect, and groomsmen were Roger Repsold, Chicago; Ken Holmes, Schaumburg; Glen Daugherty, Macomb; and Bob Schmoldt, the groom's brother. Ushers were Bruce Surratt, the bride's brother-in-law from Jacksonville, and Richard Hendricker, Arenzville.

GROOMSMEN WERE Lee's brothers, Bill of Palatine and Jerry of Round Lake Beach; Joe Bevilaqua, Des Plaines; and John Pottinger.

Diane and Lee were feted at a reception at the Camelot Restaurant immediately after the ceremony. They honeymooned in a cottage at Wonder Lake.

Both graduated from area high schools, she from Maine West and he from Conant.

Catherine Amann—Martin A. Baker

A motorcycle parade through downtown Mount Prospect with a bride and groom and their attendants still in wedding attire caused a lot of smiles and comments the afternoon of June 19.

The bride and groom were Catherine Marie Amann and Martin A. Baker who had just been married at 1:30 in St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, and went on the cycle ride between the groom's parents' home in Mount Prospect and the local Moose Hall where a reception followed for 130 guests. The bridal party and friends of the couple who came to the wedding on their motorcycles joined in the parade.

Catherine is the daughter of the James Amanns of Pardeeville, Wis., but has been working for the U.S. Suzuki Motor Corp. in Elk Grove Village where her husband is also employed. Martin, son of the Cecil Bakers of Mount Prospect, graduated from Prospect High before going to work for Suzuki.

Her attendants were gowned alike in crepe halter dresses with sheer flocked jackets but each in a different color. The maid of honor wore green, the bridesmaids, blue and yellow. Each carried carnations to match her dress.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week in northern Wisconsin before making their home in Wheeling.

Swimmers dominate Olympics

by IRA MILLER

MONTREAL (UPI) — A positive-thinking teen-ager and a college student smashed two more world records Tuesday night, keeping alive an American dream of sweeping the men's Olympic swimming events.

But the U.S. basketball team, a confident group of collegians that hopes to repay a four-year-old score, got a scare it did not expect from a guy it did not want, and was fortunate to remain undefeated in its try for the gold medal.

Brian Goodell, the teen-ager, knocked four seconds off his own world record in winning the Olympic's most gruelling swim race, the 1,500-meter freestyle, in 15:02.40. John Hencken of Stanford, the only American in this year's competition who won a gold medal at Munich in 1972, clipped a half-second off his world record in winning the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:03.11.

Tuesday's results left the U.S. with a total of seven gold medals and 16 over-all. East Germany has six golds and a total of 14, the Soviet Union four golds and a total of seven.

Goodell, 17, from Mission Viejo, Calif., had not even been expected to qualify for the Olympics, but an illness to Tim Shaw, last year's Sullivan Award winner, improved his chances — and then he set a world record in the Olympic trials.

He's fresh from taking a course in positive thinking called "Let go of the cookie," and credits it with helping him persevere through the grind of swimming just under one mile in competition.

"It means get your head together," said Goodell. "I talk to myself during a race. I go over the positives and negatives. The positives won tonight."

The positives also are winning for Hencken, who now has produced three world record performances in his event in two days despite appearing somewhat bored by it all.

Butch Lee, a Marquette University sophomore, made the game tight. Lee was snubbed by the U.S. Olympic Committee and wound up playing for Puerto Rico, where he was born. He scored 35 points and took his unheralded teammates within a half-minute of pulling what would have been the most shocking upset in Olympic basketball history.

A tip-in by Notre Dame All-American Adrian Dantley and two free throws by Phil Ford, who plays for Smith at North Carolina, brought the U.S. from behind in the final half-minute.

East Germany maintained its domination of women's swimming with the victory of Petra Thumer in world record time of 4:09.89, barely beating out American Shirley Babashoff. The East Germans also got a gold medal performance from Klaus-Jergen Grunke in the 1,000-meter cycling time trial. Japan won the men's team gymnastics competition, and Nikolai Kolesnikov of the USSR won the featherweight weightlifting.

Elsewhere:

• Bantamweight boxer Charles Mooney, an Army Sergeant stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., scored a split decision over former European champion Juan Rodriguez of Spain. Flyweight Leo Randolph of Tacoma, Wash., advanced on a forfeit since his scheduled opponent had been from Togo, one of the black African nations boycotting the Olympics.

• U.S. Greco-Roman wrestlers, a sport in which the Americans never have won a medal, scored two significant upsets. Middleweight Dan Chandler of Minneapolis decisioned Csaba Hegedus of Hungary, a three-time world champion and the 1972 gold medalist. Superheavyweight Willie Lee of Muncie, Ind., pinned Alexandr Tomov of Bulgaria, a four-time world champion.

• The U.S. women's basketball team beat Bulgaria 95-79 behind 17 points by Nancy Dunkle and 16 by Patricia Roberts. The victory evened the Americans' record at 1-1 and kept them in the running for a medal.

• In rowing, the U.S. eight-oared crew, considered a solid bet for a medal and including five members of its 1974 world championship team, was eliminated.

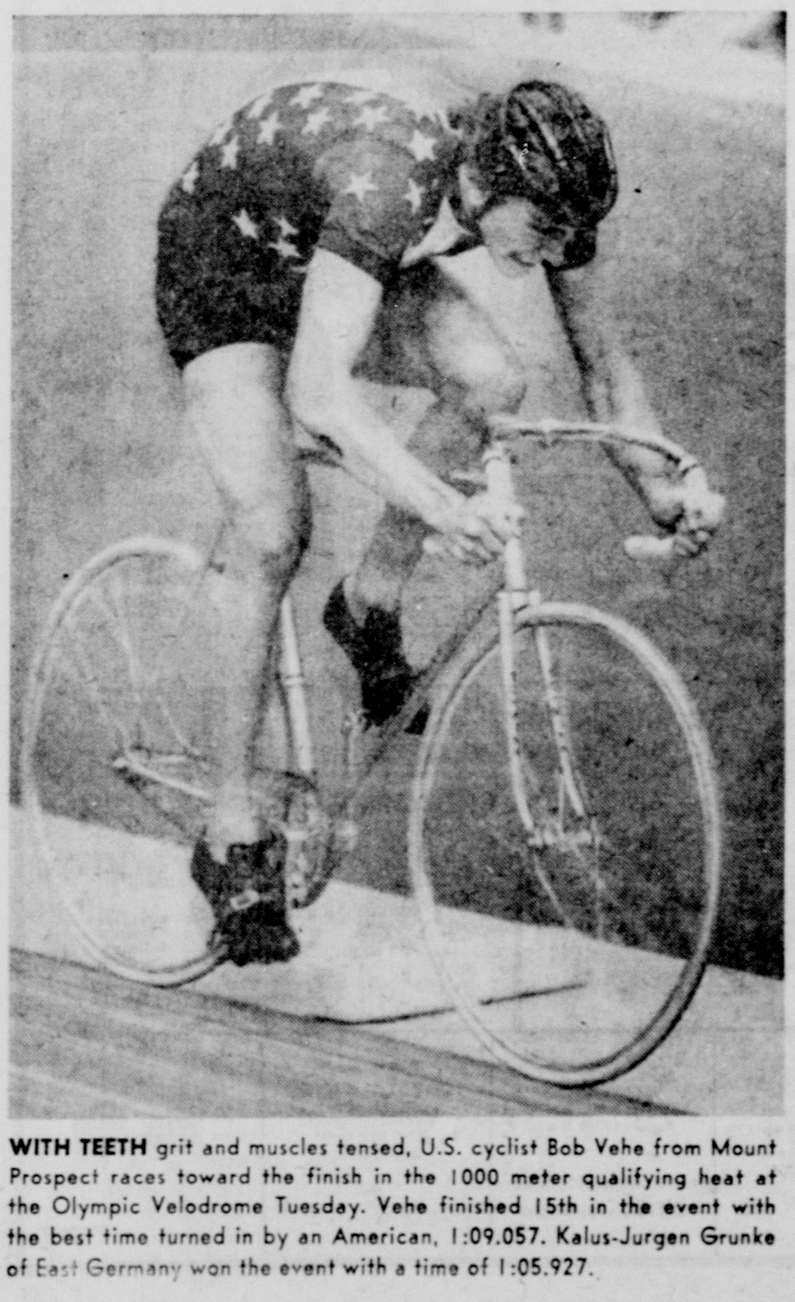
• Cuban Roberto Richards, 22, fell off the horizontal bar while attempting a backward somersault dismount in practice and broke his left leg. Domenic Bidard, a featherweight weightlifter from France, suffered a dislocated right shoulder when he couldn't handle a weight.

It is swimming, however, that — as always — dominates the early days of the games, and the only word to describe the U.S. men is "perfect."

For several years, the development of new stars in swimming was hindered because of the domination of superstars like Don Schollander in the mid-60's and later Mark Spitz, winner of an incredible seven gold medals — all in world record time — at Munich.

But in this Olympics, five events have been contested for men. Five different Americans have won them all, and each has been in world record time.

The swimmers are talking about an unprecedented 13-for-13 sweep. Their coach, James "Doc" Counsilman, is telling them to stop talking.



WITH TEETH grit and muscles tensed, U.S. cyclist Bob Vehe from Mount Prospect races toward the finish in the 1000 meter qualifying heat at the Olympic Velodrome Tuesday. Vehe finished 15th in the event with the best time turned in by an American, 1:09.057. Kalus-Jurgen Grunke of East Germany won the event with a time of 1:05.927.

AFTER FOUR years of practice to be a part of the ongoing Olympic games, Brad Schlesinger was cut from the U.S. team handball squad just two days before he was to leave for Montreal.

Schlesinger bitter about losing chance

by DON FRISKE

After four years of preparation, it did not seem fair to Brad Schlesinger that an 11th-hour political decision could wipe his name from the U.S. team handball entry in the ongoing Olympic games.

The unfortunate thing was that it happened so quickly, giving the Mount Prospect resident little time for recourse.

Two days before he was scheduled to leave for Montreal he got a phone call bringing news that he was dropped from the team.

"I was really shocked. I couldn't believe it," Schlesinger said. "It never entered my mind that this would happen."

The story of Schlesinger's misfortune begins early last May when he was selected to the team with nine others. From that time to July 4, he figured he was going to the Olympics and he began a heavier training schedule.

About a month after the first 10 players had been selected, the final two members were added to the team. Coach Dennis Berkholtz turned his roster in to the U.S. Team Handball Federation for approval.

On June 30, the six-member group approved all but one and, unknown to Schlesinger at the time, this was the first crucial step in his removal.

The player who was cut felt cheated and argued that four members of the Federation hadn't seen the team practice enough to reach any fair conclusions. He petitioned to the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC) to intercede.

USOC obliged and said the Federation should re-evaluate its choices.

They decided to cut a different member, the only representative from the Army. Politics now entered the picture in a big way.

A hearing was held in front of the Federation to see if the Army representative could be returned to the roster.

"He was obviously hurt and he thought it was unfair that I was once a professional baseball player," Schlesinger said. "The Federation told me he was making acquisitions, but that there would be no problem. So I didn't think anything about it."

Schlesinger played in the Kansas City Royals minor league system in 1968. He got hurt and lasted only one season.

Because team handball was such a new sport in America many of its participants were professionals. To overcome this problem, USOC waivered the professionalism.

"That's how I got in," Schlesinger said. "I went to the coach and the U.S. snares 5th swimming gold

by CHRIS SCHERF

MONTREAL — American's Brian Goodell beat Australia's Steve Holland Tuesday in world record time in their Olympic 1,500 meter swim duel that had been eagerly awaited by both teams and teammate John Hencken retained the 100-meter breaststroke title with still another world mark.

The victories gave the American men gold medals in all five events swum thus far — all in world record times.

However, the U.S. women, while again posting their best times ever, continued to trail East German stars. In the women's 400-meter freestyle, American Shirley Babashoff was second to East German Pietra Thumer, which gave East Germany all four women's medals so far — three in world record time.

Goodell had been a teammate of Holland when the Australian came to the United States for four months last year to work with the famed swim club at Mission Viejo, Calif.

Goodell, a 17-year-old high school student, won Tuesday night in a time of 15:02.40 with American teammate Bobby Hacket second in 15:03.91 and Holland third in 15:04.66.

Holland had shattered American Tim Shaw's world record in the 1,500-meter freestyle last February but Goodell brought the record back to the United States in the American Olympic trials with a time of 15:06.66.

The American and Australian swim teams had made friendly wagers of Olympic buttons in the Olympic Village last week on the outcome of the race, the most gruelling of the swim races. The Aussies were so confident of Holland's ability they were willing to bet on him against the trio of Americans entered in the event.

Goodell, who won the silver medal in the 1,500-meter world championship event at Cali, Colombia, last year, credited a positive thinking course called "Let Go of the Cookie" for his perseverance in the grueling metric mile swim.

"It means get your head together," said Goodell. "I just talk to myself during the race. I go over the positives and the negatives as the race is going on and the positives won tonight."

Hackett set a world record early pace before Holland took the lead on the 19th lap, with Goodell remaining third at that point, swimming in Hackett's wake as he had done throughout the race.

On the 22nd lap out of 30, Goodell began to move and took the lead with 100 meters to go. Surprisingly, Hackett had the reserve to go with Goodell and also pass Holland.

Hencken, 22, of Santa Clara, Calif., apparently able to break his world record in the 100-meter breaststroke at will, did it again to edge Britain's David Wilkie and Russia's Arvidas Iuozaytis for his first gold medal of the games.

The Stanford University senior, who won the gold in both breaststrokes in the 1972 Olympics, turned in a 1:03.11 Tuesday night while Wilkie had a 1:03.43 and the Russian was clocked in 1:04.23.

The American men continued to dominate the swimming with all five gold medals and 11 overall medals of a possible 15.

Babashoff, of Fountain Valley, Calif., broke the world record by more than a second, but still was not able to keep up with Thumer. It was Babashoff's second silver medal of the games, having swum the freestyle of the women's 400-meter medley relay team which finished second to the East Germans.

Thumer was timed in 4:09.89 to give the East German girls a gold medal in every women's race thus far.

Canada's Shannon Smith won the bronze in the freestyle event.

Cubs slip past Giants, 3-2

From Herald Wire Services

SAN FRANCISCO — The Chicago Cubs got a scare in the bottom of the ninth when the San Francisco Giants put runners on second and third with no outs and the Cubs leading 3-1. They held on to win 3-2.

Darold Knowles came in to get the save for Rick Reuschel, who had pitched six innings of no-hit baseball. Knowles got Bobby Murcer to hit a ground out which drove in a run, but then got Darrell Evans and Ken Reitz on strike outs.

Marty Perez smashed a single up the middle to lead off the Giants' seventh inning and break up Reuschel's no-hitter.

Reuschel allowed only two walks before Perez' hit while striking out four.

The victory snapped a six-game losing streak for the Cubs. During that time, the Cubs collected only 10 runs with a meek .186 average.

Joe Wallis, batting in the number two spot, delivered the key single in the Cubs' eighth. It came with the bases loaded and snapped another streak when the Cubs took a 2-0 lead.

Ed Halicki had a string of 25 scoreless innings before the Cubs scored. That set a National League record for the season.

Bill Madlock's RBI single, driving in Rick Monday, proved to be the winning hit.

The Cubs had threatened to break Halicki's streak earlier when Mick Kelleher led off the sixth with a double.

He was sacrificed to third by Reuschel, but then Monday popped out and Wallis struck out to end the inning.

The Giants broke Reuschel's shut out in the eighth when Chris Speier led off with a triple and scored on Dave Rader's sacrifice fly.

Joe Coleman came on to relieve Reuschel in the ninth. He quickly gave way to Knowles after giving up a walk and double with no outs.

Yanks bop Sox in the rain, 14-9

The New York Yankees defeated the White Sox Tuesday night, 14-9, in a game called in the eighth because of rain.

It was the 11th win in 12 games for the Yankees against the Sox.

Ken Holtzman, the Yankees' starter, came into the game with 18 consecutive scoreless innings, but he quickly lost that string when the Sox scored seven runs in the first. Holtzman lasted only 1/3 of an inning.

The inning was capped by Bill Stein's three-run homer to make the score 6-0. It was Stein's second consecutive three-run shot. Just before that the Sox scored on a suicide squeeze play.

Ken Brett, who has pitched well for the Sox but has received little hitting support, finally got what he was looking for. But he wasn't effective.

He was getting behind the batters and before long the Yankees had fought back to a 7-7 tie and both starting pitchers were gone.

The Sox used an error by Yankee left fielder Roy White to take the lead in the third, 8-7, but the Yankees took the lead for good with four runs in the top of the fourth.

They had the bases loaded with no outs and four runs already in when Pete Vuckovich got the next three batters to end the fourth. Carlos May's infield single was the big hit of the inning as it scored two runs when shortstop Bucky Dent slipped on the wet ground after stopping the ball.

Stein collected his fifth consecutive hit in the Sox' fifth. His double led to the ninth run for Chicago as Ralph Garr's single brought him home.

The Yankees picked up a run in the seventh and added two more in the eighth before the rains came and stopped the game in the Sox' half of the same inning.

Egypt joins list of Olympic dropouts

MONTREAL (UPI) — Politics continued to be the name of the biggest game being played at the Olympic games Tuesday.

Egypt officially announced its withdrawal from the Olympic Games Tuesday after the Egyptians failed to show for a morning basketball game against Italy.

The Canadian Olympic Organizing Committee (COJO) confirmed that the Arab country was withdrawing its entire team as part of the growing support of Black Africa.

Further irritating the sensitivities of the African nations and their supporters was a report that the U.S. women gymnasts are planning a tour of South Africa next week.

Amid the international pot boiling, the competition was continuing and the U.S. gained its fourth gold medal of the Games when Don Haldeman of Souderton, Pa., won the trap shooting competition with a score of 190 out of a possible 200.

In an incident at the Olympic swimming pool, a Hungarian girl, Gabriella Verraszto, had to be pulled from the water after becoming ill during practice for the 100-meter backstroke.

She revived after medical attention and insisted on taking part in her heat, an Olympic medical spokesman said. She failed to qualify by 500ths of a second.

Promoters push Olympic tickets

MONTREAL (UPI) — Organizers at the Olympic games have resorted to taking out large newspaper ads in hopes of selling nearly 1.9 million tickets still available to various events.

A potential buyer cannot be too selective, however.

"If you show up at the site, you'd be surprised how many tickets are still available," said Jean Pierre Belzile, who heads the ticket distribution force here.

Many persons are apparently under the impression that the only way to obtain tickets to any of the 21 sports being contested is to deal with that familiar sporting institution — the scalper.

Forty dollar tickets to the opening ceremonies Saturday were being sold for up to $500 each outside the Olympi cStadium, according to police, and that apparently changed the minds of many fans who originally planned to see the individual events, which end Aug. 1.

Belzile said there is no reason to pay three or four times the listed ticket price unless the person insists on watching a final.

All you have to do, he said, is line up at Eaton's, a downtown Montreal department store, to purchase tickets 24 hours in advance of an event. In some cases — for instance soccer at the 72,000 seat Olympic Stadium, or field hockey — it is possible to walk up to the ticket window and buy your ticket on the same day.

Originally, 4.7 million tickets were put on sale in 1973 through various outlets. Belzile said 1.88 million were still unsold at the latest check Monday.

Linebacking to law for Buoniconti

MIAMI (UPI) — Middle linebacker Nich Buoniconti of the Miami Dolphins ended a 14-year pro career Tuesday in favor of his law practice and a weekend broadcasting contract.

Buoniconti, 35, had been expected to announce his retirement after he failed to show up with the rest of the Dolphin veterans on the scheduled reporting date Sunday.

Buoniconti had been asked to report with the rookies a week earlier than that, but asked coach Don Shula for an extra week in which he would vacation in California and ponder his future in football.

The 5-11, 220-pounder had sat out the entire season last year after he shattered a thumb in an exhibition game, but said Tuesday that at that time expected to return to action this year.

Mets-Expos complete 4-player deal

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos Tuesday night traded outfielders Jim Dwyer and Pepe Mangual to the New York Mets in exchange for infielder Wayne Garrett and outfielder Del Unser.

The announcement was made during Tuesday night's rain-delayed game between the Expos and the Atlanta Braves by Montreal President John McHale.

Dwyer, who has been used primarily as a pinch-hitter, was batting only .185. He appeared in 50 games, had 92 at-bats, seven runs, 17

Mangual, who had nailed down a regular outfield job with Montreal, was batting .260 in 67 games. He had 215 at bats, 34 runs, 56 hits, three doubles, one triple, no home runs and five RBI's.

"We've been working on this deal for the past six weeks," said McHale. "But I guess the injury to (Dave) Kingman Monday night pretty much allowed the Mets to make up their minds. Both Garrett and Unser are left-handed batters and that's what we need because we face so many right-handed pitchers.

Asher retires; Bears cut 3 backs

Bob Asher, a six-year veteran offensive lineman for the Bears, announced his retirement Tuesday before the team began its second scheduled workout of the day.

The Bears also asked waivers on three running backs, Bill Marek from Wisconsin, Ron Cuie from Oregon State, and Eddie Moss from Southeast Missouri State, and safety Joe Larkin from Boise State.

Asher said the main reason for his retirment was physical. "My legs are gone," he said. "They're dead. I've been feeling pain in my neck and back. It was painful to play and I was always fatigued."

Woodfield Cubs in quarterfinals

The Woodfield Cubs Babe Ruth baseball team has advanced to the quarterfinals of the State "Tournament of Champions" Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament currently being held in Brookfield. The Cubs, behind four-hit pitching, defeated LaGrange 6-2. Saladino struck out 14 and walked just one.

Woodfield will play in the quarterfinals Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. against the winner of host Brookfield vs. Bloomingdale. Mike Johnson is expected to start Wednesday's game.

Saladino had a perfect game going thru 5-2/3 innings, but a single by LaGrange hurler Mike Dunlap broke the ice. Cub batters supported Saladino with eight hits, including two each by first baseman Tim Bukar and second baseman Dave Grant. He also had a pair of hits and drove in two runs.

Lewis earns bid

Kirt Lewis of Buffalo Grove won a chance to compete in a national wrestling tournament by finishing second in a state tourney last weekend.

Lewis took second in the 132-pound division of the Greco-Roman tourney. The top two wrestlers from each weight class won opportunities to compete nationally.

Schlesinger misses chance

Federation in 1972 and they said my amateur status had been re-instated."

Schlesinger felt positive that the decision made four years ago would hold up and he would stay on the team. But he got a call from the president of the Federation July 4, one that ended the dreams of a 30-year-old who knew this would be his last chance to compete with and against the best in the world.

He was off the team and the Army representative had won his case.

"When they came up with the decision I had two days to work something out. There was just no time. I called every lawyer I could think of and also the President's Council on Olympics. There just wasn't enough time for them to get back to me," he said.

Schlesinger thinks he has a strong case and he plans to carry it further. But he is well aware that each country has the separate power to decide between what is amateur and what is professional.

"I would love to go after them on this," he said. "I really have to think about it and reflect on what happened. I'm bitter about it now."

It was more than just a personal hurt for Schlesinger. He was also concerned with the team, a group of men from all over the country who had gotten together every second weekend to prepare for the Olympics.

Just before he was dropped, Schlesinger had competed with the team against a strong Iceland squad in a tournament in Milwaukee. The U.S. team won both games, with Schlesinger as its leading scorer in the first contest.

"I felt bad for the team. I was very upset personally, but more than that our team was doing very well at the time and, because I was a starter, I was concerned with the unity," he said.

Schlesinger is upset when he is approached by people who preach to him about the purity of Olympic amateurism. He fails to see the validity in that "pompous attitude," as he calls it.

"I gave up a lot of things and I didn't see any justice in the decision at all," he said. "It was a senseless, stupid thing to do. I couldn't believe it."

This weekend, Schlesinger is going to pay a visit to his former teammates in Montreal. The trip is a week late and the excitement and anticipation are gone.

SAA to hold extra football registration

The Schaumburg Athletic Association has set another football registration day Saturday, July 24, in order to accommodate those who may have been on vacation during previous registrations.

Sign-ups will be taken at the SAA house, 1307 Sharon Lane, Schaumburg, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There are plenty of openings in the super pee-wee division, a lightweight division especially for eight and nine-year-olds and new in the SAA program this year, according to football commissioner Chuck Stadler.

Stadler also said there are some openings in the other divisions for boys through 13 years old.

The registration fee is $30 plus the obligation to participate in the annual candy sale. Parents who do not wish to participate may choose the option of paying an additional fee.

Stadler stressed that all boys registered in the program will play.

Anyone desiring more information may contact Stadler at 894-1351.

Gerry Ford consults the experts

I have been to ballgames with truck drivers, stevedores, guys with tattoos and their own bowling shirts. But I never went to a game before with a guy who could pick up a phone and start a war. I've been with lots of guys who could start a fight, though. I've even been with some rich guys who owned their own plane. But never one who had his own air force.

I've had police escorts before—but never friendly ones. I've been in lots of locker rooms. But never with anybody where the players wanted to get his autograph.

It all began with a phone call Monday. It was from the White House. That had to be a first in my family, too. Would I like to come to Washington and be the President's guest and fly up with Mr. Ford in Air Force One to the All-Star game in Philadelphia and back?

Well, what are you going to say, "No, I gotta get a hair cut that day"?

Besides, as I told my wife, he probably needs me. I mean, I'm as ready to help my country as the next guy. "Probably a knotty problem with Angola," I assured her. "Kissinger's behind this."

"How are you flying in and where are you going to stay?" she wanted to know. "That's top secret," I told her. "Classified. The Communists will probably be monitoring all our calls. Don't even tell your sister. I expect I'll be staying at the White House. The President will want me nearby for consultation."

"What will the President want with you?" she wanted to know. "He already knows the infield-fly rule."

I made a reservation at the Hay-Adams Hotel across the street from the White House, just in case they wanted me to slip past the press. "If the White House calls, just patch them right through," I told the desk.

The call did come through from the White House. I was told to report to the West Lobby, from where I would be driven to Andrews Air Force Base to board Air Force One.

The cop at the gate did a good job of pretending not to know who I was. "Your driver's license, please. Take it out of the plastic," he ordered. I thought for a minute I was going to get a ticket.

The President had surrounded himself with some of the best global brains for this mission. Joe Garagiola, the old catcher, who reports that the first thing to go with an old ballplayer is the hair — then the legs. There was Ernie Banks, "Mr. Cub," the Bluebird of Happiness, who could think of something nice to say about the Johnstown Flood. "Ernie thinks Nixon just had a bad homestand," Garagiola chirped. Then, there was David Israel, sportswriter from the Washington Star; John Underwood, from Sports Illustrated; and myself, the expert on Far Eastern affairs.

When the President summoned us to his quarters on the plane, he was dining on Coquille St. Jacques, a stomach-tester of lobster, crab meat and cream sauce in a shell, and two scoops of chocolate chip ice cream. I don't know if the country is in good hands, but it's in good stomach. I had a beer.

The conversation veered around to the mess at the Olympics. But the President stopped short of asking me what to do about it. Well short of it.

I decided to lead into Angola gingerly. "Mr. President," I said, "did you ever tackle Pug Rentner?" Mr. Ford, you see, was a bare-headed center from Michigan in the 30s, and Pug Rentner has always been one of my favorite football names. Not necessarily player, just name. With a name like Pug Rentner, you don't have to be good. I think they put Pug on the All-American team from Northwestern largely because they just wanted to have that name in there.

"Many times, Jim," the President told me. "But I got this eye kicked open by Jay Berwanger." He fingered one eye. "Or was it this one?" he wondered, fingering the other. "I didn't think Jay Berwanger ever got tackled," I told him. Besides, if Jay Berwanger ever kicked open my eye, I would have it bronzed.

When we landed in Philly, it was clear the President was saving me. Possibly for a briefing with Kissinger later.

We went down to the locker room, where Johnny Bench and Pete Rose were surprised to see me in the Presidential party. "What in the world is he doing with you?" Pete blurted. "Well," I told him, "He's looking for a vice president, isn't he? Anyway, I may be ambassador to Cincinnati." I told Pete to be sure not to clap him on the back or to show him how to slide. Steve Garvey wanted to meet the President's son, Jack. I handled the introductions smoothly.

We were hustled up to the box of the Phillies' owner, Ruly Carpenter, where we sat behind bullet-proof glass for the game. The President joined us after he threw out the first ball.

I had to admire the way he steered the conversation away from me. You would never have guessed that I had been flown into Washington for anything more important than a ball game. Statesmen don't rush things.

Finally, it came. In the seventh inning, the President leaned back. "Jim," he said, "tell me something." ("Here it comes," I thought. "'probably, India, at first, and then the whole Far East.") The President pointed. "Who's that at shortstop? He's in a Dodger uniform." I looked. "That, Mr. President, is Billy Russell. One of the fastest runners in the league. Hard to double up."

Billy Russell promptly hit into a double play. He was out at first by 45 feet.

Ernie Banks was not waiting to be asked. "Look at that Cedeno," he told the President, pointing at the batter. "With that stance, he's never going to hit the ball out of the infield." Cesar Cedeno promptly hit a ball 600 or 700 feet over the left-field fence. "Yah!" shouted Garagiola. "You change his stance, Ernie, and he hits singles to right field! Bah!" The President laughed uproariously. "I hope he gets better advice from his Cabinet," someone offered.

The next day was to be the President's 63rd birthday. So, on the way home, we all gathered in Air Force One to cut a big cake and sip champagne. Ernie Banks forgot the words to "Happy Birthday To You."

At the door, the President shook hands with all of us and thanked us for coming. "Jim," he said to me. "I'm sorry we didn't get a chance to talk more."

"I'm in the book, Mr. President," I told him.

After all, he knows where to reach me.

FALLING STAR. Major league home run leader and Mount Prospect native Dave Kingman dives for ball in outfield Monday night tearing a ligament in his right thumb. Surgery on the New York Met star will keep him out of the lineup for six weeks.

Surgery silences Kingman's bat

NEW YORK — With Dave Kingman's home run bat and gate appeal out of the lineup for six weeks after an operation for a torn ligament in his left thumb, the New York Mets said Tuesday they probably would not add a replacement player to their roster until Thursday.

Kingman was injured in the third inning of Monday night's game when he fell while chasing a soft fly ball hit into short left field by Atlanta pitcher Phil Niekro. He jammed his thumb, still in the glove, into the ground and the ligament was "folded" into the joint, said Mets' club doctor James Parkes.

"He was operated on two hours after the time of the injury," said Dr. Parkes. "He has left the hospital and the cast may be changed in approximately a week, but that won't affect the total time in a cast — four weeks."

Parkes said Kingman would need another two weeks to get the hand ready for baseball after the cast is removed.

For the Mets, who had started the baseball season with hopes of being a pennant contender, it was another major disappointment, since Kingman's pursuit of the home run records of Babe Ruth and Roger Maris was about all that was left of the season for them.

The Mets are 14½ games behind the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League's East Division, but attendance remained good because Kingman's 32 homers in 92 games had put him three games ahead of Ruth's pace in 1927, when he hit 60 homers in a 154-game schedule, and only four games behind Maris' pace in 1961 when he hit 61 homers in 162 games. Kingman was three games ahead of Hack Wilson, whose 56 homers in 1930 is the NL record.

Kingman was batting .234 with 72 runs batted in. The Mets left on a road trip after Monday Night's game and will play in Cincinnati tonight.

Press outnumbers Olympic athletes

MONTREAL — With the withdrawal of some 700 African and Arab athletes, correspondents now outnumber performers at the Olympic Games in Montreal.

At the latest count, there were 7,886 press corps members and 6,934 athlets. The flags of 17 boycotting nations have been taken down from the roof of the Olympic stadium.

While flags are coming down, security is going up. Reports from enforcement organizations say that frogmen are on guard around the royal yacht Britannia, on which Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are staying, in Montreal port.

The Olympic stand for pickpockets will be empty this year after two teams of quick-fingered thieves were arrested and several hundred dollars recovered at the opening of the games. Police said the subway and parks were their favorite areas of operation.

If the U.S. track team got on the subway, chances are everyone would recognize them. The American stars have found their recognition is even more prominent in Canada than it was in the homeland.

"We practice around 2 p.m.," says runner Arthurene "Cookie" Gainer, 18, of Temple, Tex., "but you have to leave for the track 30 minutes early just to get through the people seeking autographs."

Prince Philip usually doesn't have a hand free for autographs. When he and Queen Elizabeth lunched with Canadian athletes in the Olympic village cafeteria, they ate the same food that is served to the sportsmen daily.

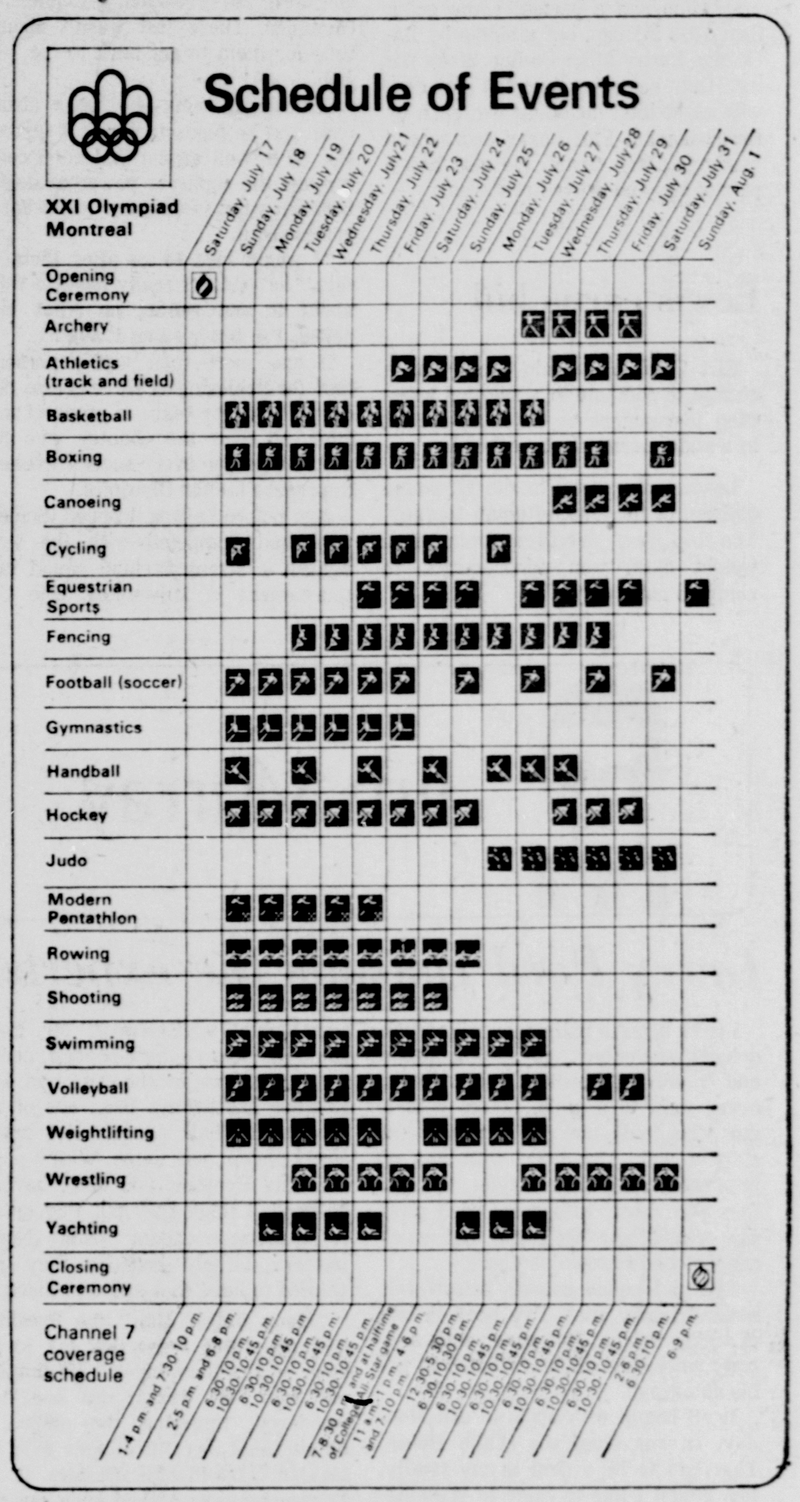
The only concession to royalty was that the queen's meal was brought to her. Prince Philip carried his own tray. "I haven't had a nanny since I was a child," he said.

Latin American teams apparently can have their cake and eat it, too. A notice in the team offices says, "Please notify the catering services three hours in advance if you want a cake to celebrate a gold medal." Sporting experts doubt many cakes will be ordered.

Maybe the Latin Americans should try the ploy of a Cuban Olympian who was seen in the Olympic Village trying to get athletes to exchange teeshirts with him. He had succeeded with at least one country — he was wearing a shirt from Canada.

While shirts are fashionable, so are the shoes issued to photographers assigned to the organizing committee.

The Republic of China quit the Olympics after a long, controversy, but the memory lingers on. The sneakers dished out to the photogs have "Made in Taiwan" stamped on the soles.



Big 10 launches football campaign at annual lunch

The 81st Big Ten football season will be launched Friday, July 30, with the fifth annual Kickoff Luncheon scheduled for noon at the Palmer House. Fans in attendance will have a chance to rub elbows with a talented array of 20 top grid stars for the coming fall along with the 10 head coaches, led by dynamic Woody Hayes of Ohio State, who will each preview the '76 edition of his squad.

Master of ceremonies for this year's luncheon will be Bill Berg, the popular afternoon radio personality on WGN-radio in Chicago.

Tickets for the luncheon are $10 apiece ($100/table). They are available by either writing the Big Ten Conference office, 1111 Plaza Dr., Schaumburg, Ill., 60195 or calling 312-885-3933.

Among those attending this year's event are five players who led the conference in the following statistical categories at the end of the 1975 season:

Passing & Total Offense — Tony Dungy, Minnesota.

Woody Hayes

Receiving — Scott Yelvington, Northwestern.

Scoring — Pete Johnson, Ohio State.

Punting — Tom Skladany, Ohio State.

Kickoff Returns — Dave Sdhick, Iowa.

Johnson and Skladany were NCAA leaders in their respective categories as well. Yelvington and Skladany have led the Big Ten in receiving and punting, respectively, for the last two years and will seek to become the first players in conference history to top the league in those categories three times.

Dungy, an All-Academic quarterback, is the fifth best returning signal-caller in the nation (based on '75 stats) and is a strong All-American candidate in 1976. Joining Dungy at this month's gathering will be another top quarterback, Kurt Steger of Illinois, the league's fourth leading passer as a sophomore last year.

Last season was billed as the "Year of the Runner" in the Big Ten. Although many of 1975's outstanding backs have graduated, a host of excellent backfield stars return for the '76 campaign. At the luncheon, in addition to Johnson and Schick, will be Indiana's Courtney Snyder, Michigan's Rob Lytle, Michigan State's Levi Jackson, Northwestern's Greg Boykin, Purdue's Scott Dierking and Wisconsin's Larry Canada.

Snyder and Boykin already hold their respective school career rushing records with still another year to play. Both Jackson and Lytle gained over 1,000 yards on the ground in '75 and could move into the top 10 career rushers in conference history with a similar season this year.

Dierking was overshadowed somewhat by the hard-running Mike Pruitt a year ago, but the West Chicago, Ill. native still led the Boilers in rushing with over 900 yards.

Canada is a strong runner. He was an excellent blocker for Billy Marek the last couple of years. He will be a great asset to versatile Mike Morgan in this year's Badger backfield.

All three position areas on the defensive side of the line will be well represented at the kickoff luncheon. Defensive linemen include Nate Washington of Iowa, Greg Morton of Michigan, Blane Smith of Purdue and Dennis Stejskal of Wisconsin.

Illinois' Scott Studwell and Michigan State's Kim Rowekamp represent the linebacking corps while Indiana's Tim McVay and Minnesota's George Adzick play the last line of defense, the secondary. Smith and Morton were first team All-Big Ten selections a year ago with Stejskal and Studwell being named to the second unit.

Dog's overnight accommodations

by DAVE TERRILL

Do you know the name and address of a hotel or motel that welcomes guests with pets but isn't listed in the directory "Touring With Towser"?

If so, you can help other pet owners find overnight lodging simply by sending the information to Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 North St., White Plaines, N.Y. 10625.

The information will be appreciated as the Center plans to begin work soon on its all-new 1977-78 edition of the popular directory, which has been a standby for pet owners since 1948.

The 64-page 1975-76 edition contains the names and addresses of 4,000 independent hostelries as well as the names of 10 nationwode chains that welcome guests with pets. The names of additional independent operators are being sought to help expand the listings and increase the pet owner's chance of finding lodging quickly when on a motor trip.

A copy of the current "Touring With Towser" can be obtained by sending 50 cents to Gaines TWT, P.O. Box 1007, Kankakee, Ill. 60901. The purchase price can be redeemed quickly by using two coupons worth 25 cents each on the purchase of the Gaines Top Choice product.

New breed to be registered —

By action of the board of directors of the American Kennel Club, the Bearded Collie will be admitted to registry in the AKC Stud Book, effective Oct. 1, 1976.

Registration as foundation stock of Bearded Collies now in the United States will generally be limited to dogs that are individually registered with the Bearded Collie Club of America. AKC registration certificates for such foundation stock will be mailed shortly after October 1 to owners of record.

Persons who own Bearded Collies that are part of registered litters but are not yet individually registered with the Bearded Collie Club of America, and who wish to inquire about AKC registration of their dogs, should contact D. Ian Morrison, Registrar, Bearded Collie Club of America, P.O. Box 541, Beacon, N.Y., 12508, for information.

Barks and Bays —

The summer doldrums are really here. Your editor's Golden Retriever "Rusty" was lying down out in the yard last Sunday. A rabbit went by, the dog looked, yawned and couldn't have cared less.

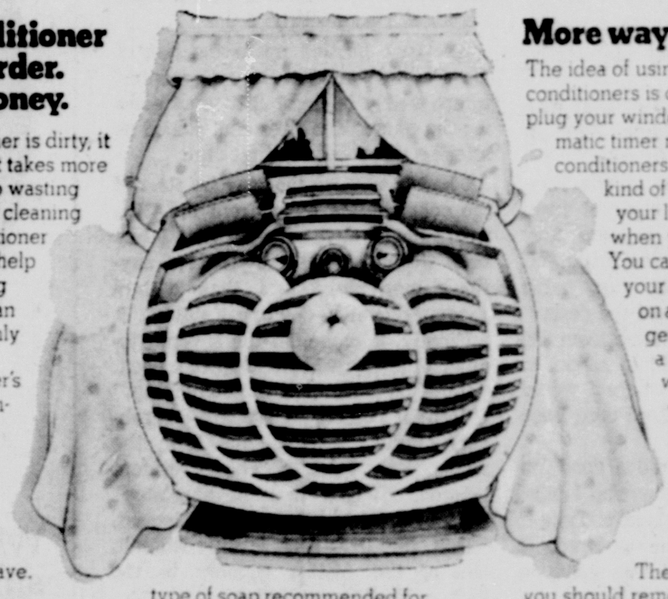
Clean your air conditioner and save some money.

A dirty air conditioner has to work harder. That wastes money.

When your air conditioner is dirty, it has to work harder. That takes more energy. And you end up wasting money. A good periodic cleaning will make your air conditioner more efficient, and will help you save on its operating costs. It's possible to clean most window units in only about 10 minutes. You should check your owner's manual for specific cleaning and maintenance instructions, but in most cases the steps to follow in cleaning are very simple. And the more thoroughly you clean, the more money you'll save.



Vacuum the filter and save a little.

First pull the plug. Then take off the front panel, and carefully remove the filter. You can vacuum it while it's still in place, but it's easier to clean the filter well if you remove it first.

Wash the filter and save a little more.

Your owner's manual will tell you whether the filter in your air conditioner is the kind that can be washed and reused. If it is, you can get the filter even cleaner by first vacuuming it, and then hand washing it in warm water and a gentle detergent. The type of soap recommended for washing woolens is best suited to this job.

Save on central air.

If you've got central air conditioning in your home, there are several steps you can take to keep your central air system running efficiently. Remember to clean or replace your furnace filters regularly. Clear away any debris from around the outdoor unit. And keep grass and shrubs trimmed back to 12 inches away from any working parts.

A call for help may help you save.

If you've had your air conditioner for several years and have never cleaned it before, it could take a qualified serviceman to perform the kind of maintenance and repairs that may be necessary. In an older unit the condenser coil, refrigerant charge, and motor parts may need expert attention.

More ways to save.

The idea of using timers on air conditioners is catching on. You can plug your window unit into an automatic timer made especially for air conditioners. It works just like the kind of timer you'd use to turn your lights on automatically when you're away from home. You can set the timer so that your air conditioner comes on an hour or so before you get home from work on a hot summer day. That way your house will be comfortable when you arrive, but you'll be using less electricity. And your air conditioner won't be running all day long.

There's one last thing you should remember about air conditioners, especially if you're thinking about buying a new one.

Air conditioner efficiency varies from model to model, depending on what we call the Energy Efficiency Ratio, or EER. The higher the EER, the more cooling you get for your electric dollar, year after year. It's easy to figure out the EER. Attached to every air conditioner is a metal plate showing that machine's watts and BTU's. To get the EER, just divide the watts into the BTU's. We recommend an EER of 8 or more.

The more efficiently you use energy, the less energy you waste, and the more money you save. And an efficient air conditioner can save you plenty.

Holmes plans bitter dreams

LATROBE, Pa. — If Pittsburgh Steelers' defensive tackle Ernie "Fats" Holmes has his way, quarterbacks around the league will dream about him nights.

"I want them to have nightmares in their sleep," he says with a twisted smile.

The Steelers will play the College All-Stars Friday in Soldier Field at 8:30 p.m. and Star quarterbacks Mike Kruczek, Jeb Blount and Craig Penrose may be tossing and turning already.

"My message to quarterbacks is this," he said, with a touch of Muhammad Ali's playfulness. "Put on your shoudler pads, put two girdle pads on tight and make sure you tie your shoe laces: I'm definitely coming at you."

Actually, its not Greene's nickname he wants, or the blood of NFL quarterbacks — it's respect. And above that, recognition.

"I am the All-Pro defensive tackle," he says matter-of-factly. "I've been overlooked two years in a row now. But I am the All-Pro.

"I need to be properly respected. This year I have that 'I will not be deprived' feeling."

As the team leader in sacks last season, Holmes is not suggesting the opposition will see a "new" Ernie Holmes, just "more" of the old one. But he did not arrive in camp in the best of condition and circumstances to begin his personal drive.

He reported more than 20 pounds overweight— his meaty legs were more flab than muscle — and was thrust on a diet of spinach and lettuce.

Then there was the stigma of his off-season narcotics indictment. He faces a trial on charges of possessing cocaine in Amarillo, Tex.

"Sometimes things come on you because you're too nice of a guy," he said, preferring not to be specific about his legal problems. "Sometimes you're not aware of what's coming on you." It is believed by some of his teammates that Holmes was the victim of a set-up.

"Some writers don't want to talk about what I want to talk about," he says. "They would like to tell me what to say. It doesn't relate to football."

One thing the writers have reported is an incident two years ago, before the Steelers won their first Super Bowl, in which Holmes was arrested for shooting a gun at trucks and wounding a trooper on the Ohio Turnpike. It was attributed to a nervous breakdown and he spent time in a rehabilitation program.

Relaxed now, with slitted eyes and a short goatee that enables him to strike a chilling pose even without his "arrow," he promises to give the likes of Roger Staubach and Fran Tarkenton disorders, physical if not mental ones.

Ask Andy

Crow is the cleverest of the birds

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Jennifer Anderson, 12, of Cloquet, Minn., for her question: WHICH BIRD IS THE SMARTEST?

In the bird world, he is not the highest or the fastest flier. He can't claim to be the largest bird, nor does he run the fastest. He certainly is not the best swimmer or diver, and he couldn't win a prize for beauty. He is surely not the most dangerous bird, and he doesn't live the longest. But in the intelligence department he is rated tops — the noisy, mischievous, clever crow.

Ornithologists group the 9,000 or so species of birds in the world into 27 orders, based mostly on their internal features. Sometimes birds are classified according to where they live, such as tropical birds, land birds and water birds. One thing is certain — birds are extremely varied in appearance, habits and behavior, and scientific studies continually reveal new and fascinating information about the way they live. What isn't so certain, however, is which bird is the smartest. Many scientists rate the crow as the cleverest, most ingenious bird, and judging by some of his antics perhaps he truly is.

The ordinary black-feathered crow of the United States and parts of Canada is the hero (or villain) of countless stories. Everyone knows how he makes a laughingstock of scarecrows. Instead of being frightened by them he usually ends up perched on a straw-stuffed shoulder in amused mockery. If he is not snitching juicy kernels of corn, perhaps he is teasing a neighborhood cat or dog. One particular crow will wait until the barnyard cat is asleep, then quietly sneak up, steal the cat's food and then peck the cat's tail before flying off.

Crows are great talkers and mimics. Certain crow fanciers report that pet crows can learn up to 100 words and half as many phrases. Wild crows frequently pick up such expressions as "Giddyap!" and "Whoa!" that they hear farmers bellow in the fields. Really talented crows can imitate perfectly the squawk of a hen, the whine of a dog or the call of a rooster. Many times their art of mimicry will land them a tasty meal.

Crows know enough not to be too cocky. They know the difference between a gun barrel and a fishing pole at a mile's distance, and sentries posted high in the treetops warn the rest of the flock. They also join forces against owls who might rob their nests, mobbing them with loud cries of indignation. They play together, too, often engaging in games like hide-and-seek, catching pebbles in midair or rousing some snoozing farm animals with screeching calls of "caw-caw."

One wild species of crow from Norway and Sweden will pull up fishermen's lines set through holes in the ice to pilfer the fish or bait. The crow will take the line in his beak and walk slowly backward with it as far as he can. Then he will come forward again, walking on top of the line to prevent it from slipping back into the hole. Grasping the line again, the canny crow will repeat this process until the goody at the end of the line becomes his very own tasty treat.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Jeannnine Kauffman, 11 of Strasburg, Pa. for her question: HOW DOES THE CROCODILE REPRODUCE?

Crocodile experts tell us that this most aggressive reptile usually mates between his 12th and 15th birthday. The adult male, weighing more than 2,000 pounds, does all kinds of things to interest his lady fair, such as blowing bubbles out of his open mouth, arching his neck, raising his tail and lashing the water. The paired crocodiles join in an elaborate courtship ritual which includes lifting their heads and rubbing jaws. They also stretch their ponderous jaws open, but there is no biting. The actual mating occurs while they are in the water.

Some five months later, from 20 to 100 eggs are laid in a nest alongside the water's edge. This nest will be used year after year by the female, who defends her young vigorously against intruders. After two or three months, she hears the first grunts from inside the nest, and she knows her babies are starting to hatch. Quickly she uncovers the eggs and carries each hatchling in her mouth to the water. After many trips, with all the tiny crocodiles safely in the water, she stays nearby to watch over them. If needed, the male parent will help transport the young to the water, an amazing display of tenderness considering the male weighs 4,000 times as much as the babies.

Give the cards a break

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

South's six-diamond bid was based on the principle that if you can count 11 sure winners, including first-round control of all suits, some divine Providence will give you a 12th trick.

When he looked at dummy his first glance indicated that Providence appeared to be looking some other way. There seemed to be no way to avoid two heart losers. Then South got an inspiration. He just might be able to ruff one heart in dummy.

He started operation heart ruff by leading a low heart. West won and led a second club. There was nothing better to do.

South ruffed, played one trump which was all he could afford, cashed three high spades in order to get rid of two of dummy's hearts, cashed his ace of hearts, ruffed his last heart with dummy's nine of trumps, drew trumps and had his slam.

He was lucky. Spades had to break 4-3 and trumps 3-2, but he had given the cards their chance.

Ordinance No. 76-66

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 8-102 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, 1965

WHEREAS, THE President and Board of Trustees have determined that an emergency situation exists due to acts of vandalism and similar offenses by persons under the age of eighteen (18) within the Village of Arlington Heights; and

WHEREAS, substantial numbers of said acts occur during the hours when persons under the age of eighteen (18) were previously subject to the curfew statutes of the State of Illinois, and said acts have been perpetrated by persons who would have been subject to said state curfew statute; and

WHEREAS, the Appellate Court for the Second District has declared said state curfew statute to be unconstitutional, which decision is now being appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court; and

WHEREAS, the Village of Arlington Heights has for many years past had in full force and effect a certain provision of its Municipal Code prohibiting the loitering of minors during certain hours, but the state statute was customarily utilized for the purpose of enforcing a curfew against minors; and

WHEREAS, in the absence of an enforceable state statute imposing a curfew for minors, the President and Board of Trustees have determined that the best interests of the Village of Arlington Heights and the protection of the physical safety and property of its citizens require that municipal ordinances regulating the loitering and unsupervised activities of minors on the public streets during the nighttime hours be enforced; and

WHERAS, in the light of the Appellate court's opinion, it is necessary to amend the existing provisions of Section 8-102 of the Municipal Code to eliminate any possible question of legality;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS:

SECTION ONE: Section 8-102 of the Municipal Code be and it is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SECTION 8-102 Loitering of minors prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any minor, under the age of eighteen (18) years, to loiter, idle, wander, stroll or play in or upon any public place, places of amusement and entertainment, vacant lots, railroad stations and grounds, bus stations or other unsupervised places within the Village, between the hours of: 11:00 o'clock P.M. on Sunday to Thursday, inclusive, and 6:00 o'clock A.M. on the following day; 12:00 o'clock A.M. and 6:00 o'clock on Saturday and Sunday, provided, however, that the provisions of this section do not apply to any minor accompanied by his or her parent, guardian or other adult person having the care and custody of the minor, or where the minor is upon an emergency errand or legitimate business directed by his or her parent, guardian or other adult person having the care and custody of the minor.

For the purpose of this section, 'loitering' shall include the presence upon any public street, place of amusement and entertainment and the other enumerated places without having any specific lawful business or purpose, but shall not include the journey to or from employment, or a lawful activity. Each violation of the provisions of this section shall constitute a separate offense.

This section shall be in full force and effect until January 31, 1977 unless extended or amended by the President and Board of Trustees. Any person violating the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined not more than Five Hundred Dollars ($500) for each such offense."

SECTION TWO: This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication in the manner provided by law.

AYES: 7; NAYS: 2.

It was Colt vs. Adams

Shootout at OK Corral topped by London 'duel'

by ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — It depends on the way you look at things but the greatest shootout of them all was not the Wyatt Earp-Clanton Boys bloodletter at the O.K. Corral or Wild Bill Hickok gunning down three men or 10 — according to whether you believe fact or fable — in the Incident at Rock Creek.

No, friends, those imperishable classics of the Old West owe a lot to a little known duel that took place, of all improbable locales, in London 125 years ago come September.

That duel, between the handguns of Sam Colt of Hartford, Conn., and Britain's Robert Adams, ended in a hometown decision and loud Yankee cries of foul.

The Colt-Adams battle for supremacy in the handgun field — at a time when rifles were slow-loading and inaccurate and a good revolver a sort of life insurance — has been unearthed over the past 20 years by a pertinacious British research and author named Joseph G. Rosa.

Rosa's "Colonel Colt London" has recently been published by the Arms and Armour Press and Fortress Publications of Ontario with many hitherto private details of the years from 1851 to 1857 when Colt opened a factory in Britain, which had given him his first pistol patent at the age of 21.

FROM THE BOOK Sam emerges as a resourceful inventor, industrialist and showman who needed all these qualities to overcome his wily British rival, Adams.

Colt couldn't spell a lick.

"The treasury du allow the few specimens of unfinished wirk I had at the world fare to be used in England for the perposes of teching the workmen . . .," he wrote.

But Sam was only 48 when he died and his estate was estimated at more than $3 million. A lot of good spellers left far less.

Rosa is an extraordinary man who was so moved by Gary Cooper in the film "Wild Bill Hickok" that he produced the definitive biography of the western hero without leaving Britain or his job as a teleprinter operator. He wrote hundreds of letters to kindly Hickok sources in the United States.

For "Colonel Colt London" he dug through bales of obscure documents here, in Hartford and elsewhere. He is now communications supervisor of a company associated with Lloyds of London.

Sam's venture in London and the showdown with Adams came about because of the American's desire to exhibit his pistols at the World's Fair of 1851.

The tight circle of British gunmakers shook with alarm and not only because they knew the Texas Rangers were using .36 caliber Colts with nine-inch barrels.

They were more worried that the American's mass-production methods would swamp their hand-made few. But one was unafraid and that was Adams who, said Rosa in an interview, "patented improvements to pistols in a remarably short time."

"Colt's revolver was single-action, the hammer had to be thumb-cocked for each shot," Rosa said, "but Adams' was cocked and fired each time the trigger was pulled.

"'Adams' revolver was quickly adopted as Britain's answer to Colt and the stage was set for their no-holds-barred rivalry.

"MAKE NO MISTAKE, Sam Colt was not intimidated by Adams but he was no fool either and he was equally capable of every trick in the book. Adams, on home ground, was ruthless and as unscrupulous as Sam could be in Hartford. Both were products of their time."

As an example Rosa cites tests made with pistols for the British ordnance department which omitted the Colt.

Sam got the American Minister to intercede with Lord Anglesey, the Master General or Ordinance, for his pistol also to be tested.

Anglesey agreed but referred to the Colt in a letter to his subordinate as "the curious American pistol."

The shootout took place Sept. 10, 1851 and although the results were never officially published, The Times said the Colt was "very good."

Adams immediately circulated an account alleging not a single misfire from his gun and 10 misfires from the Colt. It was a masterly job of throat-cutting and Sam took legal advice but finally decided to do it his way.

REALIZING ADAMS had support in high places and equally aware of the lure of a beautiful weapon to almost any man, Sam began to present Colts to people who could do him the most good, such as Prince Albert, Consort of Queen Victoria, and the Prince of Wales.

Before long he also had considerable influence and, even better, some of his guns had found their way to the Cape war against the Kaffirs who were using the Sioux Indian tactic of waiting till the British had fired and then attacking during the comparatively long time it took to reload a musket. The Colt cancelled out that advantage.

The real breakthrough came when Colt was invited to address the Institution of Civil Engineers on Nov. 25, 1851. The talk was a triumph in itself but the American Minister gave yeoman support by asserting from the floor that the British would never defeat the Kaffirs without Colts.

Adams was present and, Rosa says, apparently made a gentlemanly presentation of his own weapon but a version was quickly circulated in London alleging that the Briton had been so inept as to "embarrass" the distinguished audience.

Sam had learned fast — from then on his gun had fairly clear sailing.

The final cachet — not that it was needed — came on Aug. 4, 1855 when The Times said of the Colt:

"Had the Light Brigade been so equipped, even the desperate valour of their famous Balaklava Charge might have been justified by a triumphant result."

And Punch Magazine with poetic license wrote:

"Oh! Colonel Colt, a thunderbolt
"I'd buy — for no small trifle;
"But that can't be, and so let me
"Get your revolving rifle."

Report army mutiny against Idi Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A Kenyan newspaper said Tuesday Ugandan army units have mutinied against President Idi Amin in two towns over orders they invade Kenya and the rebellion was spreading.

Earlier, Uganda radio reported that Amin was planning to make a pilgrimage to eJrusalem "whether the Arabs or Israelis like it or not."

The Uganada army mutiny report appeared in the Daily Nation newspaper of Nairobi in a story to be published Wednesday. It said that "two battalions have refused to take orders from Kampala since Sunday . . . and the mutiny is spreading."

It said the mutinous troops have dug bunkers and foxholes around their barracks in anticipation of a counter-attack by troops loyal to Amin.
